INTRODUCTION

Rothmans Book of Football Records is the historical companion to Rothmans Football Yearbook. It includes items which have not featured in previous editions of the Yearbook, as well as expanding on some of those which appeared in earlier editions. There are Football League, FA Premier League and Scottish League tables dating back to the start of these various competitions and it should be noted that in addition to the normal indication of rules and broken rules to signify promotion/relegation and play-off places, a rule above and below one team refers to either promotion or relegation in the years before there was automatic movement between divisions.

For the purposes of continuity, regional league tables for the period of both World Wars have been included and similarly Wartime and Victory Internationals are put in chronological order for the same reason. These particular matches are highlighted with an asterisk * and there is a separate list of wartime appearances and goals. For both peacetime and wartime matches the actual number of games played at each match is listed next to the name of the player. There has been no attempt made to place the players in any particular order, although the goalkeeper is invariably the first named. However, it should be noted that in the earliest years when goalkeeping was not a specialised position, it was often difficult to distinguish them. It was not assisted by the fact that teams at one time were listed from outside left to goalkeeper! It is also interesting to recall that in England's first official International against Scotland in 1872, Barker played in goal in the first half and changed places with left-winger Maynard for the second!

On other specific items, League appearances and goals for each English Championship winning team can be found, as well as a detailed analysis of goals in England since the inception of professional football in 1888, showing scoring trends through the years. There are results of British clubs' exploits in European matches with goalscorers.

All the major domestic cup finals in England and Scotland are reproduced and there are league and cup winners for the European countries and those in South America.

There are club and individual records, as well as full details of final competitions in the World Cup and European Championship. Other information ranges from the youngest, oldest, tallest, shortest, heaviest and lightest players to record sequences of wins, defeats, unbeaten runs and drawn games to the world's most expensive players, results of top derby matches in England and Scotland, average League attendances for English clubs, leading goalscorers and milestones reflecting some of the main events in the game's history. There are also short explanatory notes on specific record-breaking teams and individuals.

As we head towards the Millennium with the European Super League much in discussion, the following extract may underline the fact that little changes in football, though it sometimes takes a while before it actually happens. The headline read:

'WHY NOT A FOOTBALL LEAGUE OF NATIONS?'

This was followed by:

'With the trend of modern football, it may not be long before we see a European Cup, in place of our present League, competed for by a few wealthy British clubs and crack teams of the continent'.
Extract from Pearson's Weekly and To-Day, 29 October 1938.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank my daughter Glenda, the Editor of Rothmans Football Yearbook, for her assistance in the compilation of this book, without whose help it would not have been completed. I am indebted to Tony Brown for providing the occurrences of goalscoring and also for checking peacetime League tables and other items of a goalscoring nature.

For many years, the author has provided both the Football League and more recently also the FA Premier League with a week-by-week analysis of League attendance trends, but he also wishes to acknowledge the pioneering work carried out in the field of attendances by Brian Tabner.

The author would also like to thank both the Football League and the FA Premier League for access to the official attendances which are included each year in Rothmans Football Yearbook and which have formed the basis of the relevant years in the Rothmans Book of Football Records. Thanks are also due to the following who checked my international appearances:- Alan Elliott (Scotland), Marshall Gillespie (Northern Ireland), Grahame Lloyd and Ceri Stennett (Wales), Brian Mellowship (England) and Sean Creedon (Republic of Ireland). The author would also like to extend his appreciation to Lorna Parnell (Football League), Drew Herbertson (Scottish FA), Anthony McReavy, David C. Thompson (Scottish League), Robin Marwick and Rob Mason and FIFA for granting permission to reproduce the Laws of the Game.

Finally, sincere thanks to the indefatigable Lorraine Jerram, Headline's House Editor, plus John Anderson, Simon Dunnington and Geoff Turner and staff at Wearset for their efforts in the production of this book.

⚽ ORIGINS ⚽

Propelling an object, preferably round, or at least resembling a spherical shape and using a foot for the purpose, is such a basic instinct it is not surprising that claims for the discovery of the game can go back for centuries.

Indeed, the most likely source of anything loosely connected with football probably dates back to China around 200 BC or perhaps ever earlier. There, development of a game known as tsu chu was thoroughly researched by Professor H.A. Giles, classical and antiquarian writer and Professor of Chinese at Cambridge University. He discovered that a leather ball was used and there was some evidence to imply that emphasis was placed on dribbling. The Japanese game of kemari, which was played c.600 BC, has also been suggested as a forerunner.

The handling code, which developed as rugby football, can find its formative years in the Greek episkyros and the Roman harpastum. Indeed Roman soldiers occupying Britain played a game in which two teams of roughly equal numbers, tried to force an inflated ball over a line behind their opponents. They have been more closely associated with rugby, rather than soccer, simply because carrying the ball was a feature of both games. Similarly, the medieval mob football, which often surrounded Shrovetide games played in many parts of the country, also involved handling the ball in moving it across the countryside.

There were a number of attempts to ban these wideranging pursuits, notably by Edward II in 1314. However, there is a fourteenth-century carving in Gloucester Cathedral depicting two medieval footballers challenging for possession of the ball. The game was banned by seven monarchs between 1200 and 1650 for a variety of reasons, one of them being that the science of archery was being neglected and England depended upon this for purely military purposes.

But the peasants and labourers carried on the so-called mob football in some form or another until the practice virtually died out in the 18th century. There were street games in various parts of London with players involved often numbering in the hundreds, accompanied by inevitable damage to property.

It was only in the early years of the 19th century that the beginnings of a more organised and acceptable form of the game developed in the public schools and then the universities. It was at Cambridge where the earliest attempts were made in 1848 to adopt a uniform code of rules. Although these rules varied from place to place, it seems likely that Eton, Westminster and Charterhouse were the main public schools who developed the sport. Oxford, not to be outdone, subsequently led the way on the field. In all, they appeared in six FA Cup semi-finals, four finals and even won the trophy in 1874.

The Sheffield club formed in 1855 as the first of its kind, was influenced by those who followed the Harrow code which disapproved of handling the ball. Public school and university graduates also played a leading role in the foundation of the Football Association.

It was also at Oxford that the term 'soccer' is said to have arisen from the habit prevalent at the university of adding 'er' to certain words like togs (toggers), swots or mugs (swotters or muggers). Towards the end of the 19th century, the game was always referred to as Association Football, to differentiate it from the rugby version. At Oxford they took the 'soc' out of 'Association' and then turned this into 'soccer'. The creation of the word is often attributed to one of Oxford's most famous internationals, Charles Wreford Brown. When asked one day whether he was going to play rugger, he replied: 'No – soccer.'

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

The Football Association was formed on 26 October 1863 at a meeting at the Freemason's Tavern, Great Queen Street, London. Apart from interested individuals who attended, the following clubs were represented: Barnes, Blackheath, Charterhouse, Perceval House (Blackheath), Kensington School, War Office, Crystal Palace, Blackheath Proprietary School, The Crusaders, Forest (Epping Forest) and No Names (Kilburn). It was the first organising body of the game in the world. Now it is responsible for the governing of all football in this country.

It had been hoped for more representation from the public schools, which were the most influential centres of the game in the mid-19th century. There was also a considerable difference in the opinion of members concerning the laws of the game, which were not decided upon until the fifth meeting.

Shortly after the publication of the laws, Blackheath withdrew from membership because they were opposed to the rule banning hacking. This effectively marked the point when the two codes of the game divided.

By 1870 there were 39 members: Amateur Athletic Club, Barnes, Brixton, Bramham College (York), Clapham Rovers, Cowley School (Oxford), Crystal Palace, Donington Grammar School (Spalding), 21st Essex R.V., Forest School, Garrick (Sheffield), Hampstead Heathens, Harrow Pilgrims, Hitchin, Holt (Wiltshire), Hull College, Kensington School, Leamington College, Lincoln, London Scottish R.V., CCC (Clapham), Charterhouse School, Chesterfield, Civil Service, London Athletic Club, Milford College, No Names (Kilburn), Newark, Nottingham, Oxford University, Royal Engineers (Chatham), Reigate, Sheffield, Totteridge Park (Herts), Upton Park, Wanderers, Westminster School, West Brompton College, Worlabye House (Roehampton). The power base was clearly in the south.

However, the next most important step in the development of the game came when discussions were held towards instituting a Football Association Challenge Cup. It was initially held in the offices of the Sportsman on 20 July 1871 and approved on 16 October. The proposal for a Challenge Cup had been made by Charles Alcock, Hon Secretary of the FA and Wanderers FC.

The first entrants in 1871-72 were Barnes, Civil Service, Crystal Palace, Clapham Rovers, Donington School (Spalding), Hampstead Heathens, Harrow Chequers, Hitchin, Maidenhead, Marlow, Queen's Park (Glasgow), Reigate Priory, Royal Engineers, Upton Park and Wanderers. Harrow Chequers, Reigate Priory and Donington School all scratched without playing. Now it attracts in excess of 500 clubs per season and runs from September to May, with exemptions in the earlier qualifying rounds and up to the third round proper.

Apart from the unique circumstances of the 1945-46 tournament when the games were played on a home and away basis, the cup has been played on a strict knock-out system and the semi-finals fixed on a neutral ground, usually within convenient travelling distance between the respective teams. Since 1923 the final has been held at Wembley. The original trophy cost around £20 and was made early in 1872 by Messrs. Martin, Hall & Co.

The initial matches were completed on 11 November 1871 as follows: Barnes 2, Civil Service 0; Crystal Palace 0, Hitchin 0; Maidenhead 2, Marlow 0; Upton Park 0, Clapham Rovers 3. The first goal was attributed to Jarvis Kenrick of Clapham Rovers, who scored another goal and subsequently went on to play in three successful finals for Wanderers, scoring three goals.

Marlow are the only club to have competed in every FA Cup competition since the inaugural season, while neighbours Maidenhead missed only the 1876-77 season.

The Wanderers, a team composed of ex-public school and university players and originally formed in 1860 as Forest FC, won the first season's competition by beating the 7-4 on favourites Royal Engineers 1-0. The first cup final goal was scored by Morton Peto Betts, who played under the assumed name of A.H. Chequer. As an Old Harrovian, he had once played for Harrow Chequers.

Further controversy has arisen over the authenticity of even this goalscoring milestone. It has been suggested that Thomas Hooman had actually steered the ball between the posts. Contemporary reports were sketchy.

However, rather more difficult to understand is how the score in a subsequent final could have been totally confused. It happened in 1877 when Wanderers beat Oxford University 2-1. For many years the score was given as 2-0 and only comparatively recent research has unearthed the missing goal. It still does not figure in the FA records.

Only 2000 turned up at Kennington Oval for the original final; the admission price of one shilling (5p) thought to be responsible for the poor attendance. Since the Challenge Cup was exactly that, Wanderers were able to gain a bye to the final and choose their own venue the following year. Hence the 1873 final was played at Lillie Bridge near Earls Court. But this rule was then dropped.

Since Queen's Park was already a member of the Football Association, Scottish clubs were not barred from entry. This is why the cup is never known as the English Cup. But after Rangers reached the semi-final in 1887 to be beaten 3-1 by Aston Villa, the Scottish FA made a rule banning their clubs from entering any other nation's competition. Several Irish clubs also competed until 1890, but Welsh clubs continue to play in it. Druids were their first representatives in 1876.

A semi-final was played in Scotland in 1885. It was a replayed tie between Queen's Park and Nottingham Forest held on the ground of Merchiston Castle School, Edinburgh. Queen's Park who won 3-0, had also reached the 1884 final.

By 1881, the membership had grown to 128 and professionalism was establishing itself. The days of the dominance by universities, old boys' teams and the military were over. Though initially opposed to the payment of players, the FA legalized professionalism in July 1885. In 1903 the FA became a limited company, but in 1907 certain amateur clubs decided they were not prepared to abide by the FA's ruling that all clubs should become members. They formed a breakaway Amateur Football Alliance. In 1914 they agreed to recognise the FA's authority.

The FA also started a FA Amateur Challenge Cup in 1893, but this ended in 1974 when the governing body withdrew official recognition of amateur footballers. Since then there has been a cup competition for senior professional and semi-professional clubs outside the Football League, the FA Trophy (1969) and another for minor clubs, the FA Challenge Vase (1974), the latter competition virtually taking over from the old Amateur Cup. The Football Association was also responsible for womens football and the Womens Football Alliance is now one of the 47 County Football Associations.

In 1955 the FA had removed the ban on teams under their jurisdiction playing official matches on Sunday. Ten years later they instituted the FA Sunday Cup. The Youth Challenge Cup was inaugurated in 1952, the County Youth Cup in 1945.

For many years the Football Association continued to ignore the temptation of sponsorship for the FA Cup. However in 1994 they agreed a deal which enabled the competition to retain its title followed by the name of the sponsor as the FA Cup sponsored by Littlewoods Pools. But in 1998 the cup became The AXA sponsored FA Cup. The FA has also been successful in obtaining sponsorships for its other competitions. In 1997-98 it was the FA Umbro Trophy, the FA Carlsberg Vase and The Times FA Youth Cup.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE AND FA PREMIER LEAGUE

The prime mover behind the formation of the Football League was a Scot, William McGregor, living in Birmingham and an official of Aston Villa. Dissatisfied with the situation where his club's matches were being called off by cup-ties and local games, he corresponded with leading clubs to interest them in regularising fixtures which had increased with the growth of professionalism. He arranged a meeting of interested parties at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, London on 22 March 1888, prior to the cup final. His suggested title for the new organisation was The Association Football Union. The first formal gathering took place on 17 April at the Royal Hotel, Manchester.

The original 12 clubs were: Accrington, Aston Villa, Blackburn Rovers, Bolton Wanderers, Burnley, Derby County, Everton, Notts County, Preston North End, Stoke, West Bromwich Albion and Wolverhampton Wanderers. They agreed to an annual subscription of £2.2s (£2.10p). Three other clubs – Sheffield Wednesday, Nottingham Forest and Halliwell – applied for membership, but could not be accepted because of the difficulty in arranging fixtures.

The first matches were played on 8 September 1888 and resulted as follows: Bolton W 3, Derby Co 6; Everton 2, Accrington 1; Preston NE 5, Burnley 2; Stoke 0, WBA 2; Wolverhampton W 1, Aston Villa 1. Bolton made a sensational start scoring three times within six minutes, only for Derby to fight back to lead at the interval. Notts Co and Blackburn R began their season a week later, Notts Co losing 2-1 at Everton and Blackburn R drawing 5-5 at home to Accrington. There had been no provision for a point for drawn matches. This was instituted later.

Sheffield Wednesday and Nottingham Forest found acceptance into the Football Alliance, which started operations in 1889-90. But in 1892 it had its 12 clubs absorbed into a Second Division of the Football League. The top division had itself grown to 14 in 1891 and then to 16 clubs by 1892, making 28 in total. There were further additions: 1893 (31), 1894 (32), 1898 (36), 1905 (40) and 1919 (44).

The 1914-15 season was completed as normal, the changes being made for the 1915-16 season. Two groups, Lancashire and Midlands were formed for all except five clubs in the South who combined with Southern League teams and played in a London Combination. The regional competition was divided between a Principal Tournament and a Subsidiary Tournament, which followed it. The London Combination was similarly divided into a Principal Tournament and a Supplementary Tournament. During the First World War, the Football Association made a rule that no payment or consideration be made to a club or player for the player's services.

In 1920 the Southern League was swallowed up to form a Third Division, which became a Third Division South the following year when 20 clubs formed the Third Division North, taking the overall complement to 86 clubs. In 1923 the total number of clubs was increased to 88 with four divisions of 22 in each and this remained as such until 1950 when four new members were admitted into the regionalized Third Divisions.

For the Second World War, the regionalization varied from season to season as did the number of competing clubs. As in the First World War, it was found necessary to incorporate non-league teams in order to allow some reasonable competition in certain areas. To this end, Aberaman Athletic, Lovells Athletic and Bath City played in the Football League (West).

Unlike in the previous conflict, this time the Football League sanctioned a payment of £1.10s (£1.50) per match, but no bonus for either wins or draws. This fee covered the first four seasons. Fees were increased to £2 in 1943-44 and £4 in 1945-46.

Relegation and promotion had been introduced between the two divisions in 1898-99. Previously the issues had been decided by a series of Test Matches. On the formation of the regionalised Third Division, only one team came up from each section. This remained until the 1957-58 season, when the 12 lowest finishing clubs in each of the North and South sections formed a Fourth Division, the top 12 each minus the promoted teams becoming a new Third Division. The following season four clubs were relegated and another four promoted between the two new divisions. In 1973 the League accepted three up and three down between the first three divisions.

During the First World War, regional competitions had replaced the normal fare and again during the Second World War when a War League Cup was introduced as a replacement for the FA Cup which had been held in abeyance during the period of hostilities. In the 1930s, the League had organised cup competitions for the Third Division sections. In 1960 it started the League Cup for all League clubs.

Throughout the League's history, a varying number of clubs at the bottom of the lowest division have had to seek re-election. However, in 1987 play-offs were introduced in addition to the automatic transfer of promoted and relegated team between divisions. At the same time the bottom club was relegated to the Vauxhall Conference and replaced by the leading team from that non-league competition, providing their facilities were acceptable to the League.

But in 1991 no team was relegated and Barnet promoted from the Conference, only for Aldershot to be expelled because of financial problems in March 1992. Maidstone United followed in the August. Colchester United from the Conference restored the number to 92 clubs overall.

Goal average which had been used since the start of the League to decide placings where an equal number of points existed, was replaced by goal difference for the 1976-77 season and for the 1981-82 season, the old system of two points for a win was changed to three. Substitutes were first permitted for injured players in the Football League for the 1965-66 season and for any reason the following term. Two substitutes were allowed in the 1987-88 season and the addition of a replacement goalkeeper for 1994-95, followed by three substitutes of any denomination the next season.

Sponsorship has figured prominently in recent years, the League Cup as the Milk Cup from 1982-86, the Littlewoods Cup 1987-90, the Rumbelows Cup 1991-92, the Coca-Cola Cup 1993-98 and the Worthington Cup from 1998. The League itself was sponsored firstly by Canon in 1983 and then briefly by Today newspaper before the role was taken over by Barclays Bank in 1987, Endsleigh Insurance in 1993 and Nationwide Building Society from 1996.

When the Football Association introduced its Blueprint for the Future of Football towards the end of the 1990-91 season, it provided the opportunity for those keen to breakaway from the constraints of the Football League, with the knowledge that there would be not only official approval, but the real promise of increased finance through sponsorship and television.

The principle plan was for an 18-team set-up giving ample time for the England team manager to prepare elite players for international matches. Already there had been a move to reduce the number of teams in the First Division to 20, but the clubs were unhappy with this and there had been a reversion to 22.

On 22 February 1992, the FA Council gave its approval to the 22-club Premier League, to commence on 15 August. With the original idea of an 18-club league rejected, the three up and three down principle with the Football League would stay until the end of the 1994-95 season, when four Premier clubs would be relegated and only two promoted in their place.

Having received a massive £304 million injection from BSkyB and the BBC for television rights, the new competition had a sound financial basis. In February 1993 a four-year £12 million deal with Bass was announced and in August the competition became known as the FA Carling Premiership. A four-year extension was agreed in 1997.

Meanwhile the Football League has striven to maintain its authority on a reduced membership. The innovation of play-offs in 1986-87 has been the chief cause of a continued rise in annual attendances. Cup competitions for Full Members and Associate Members had a mixed response when introduced in the 1980s as did the Anglo-Italian Trophy, brought in when the Premier League took a quarter of its clubs. Unfortunately they suffered from short-term sponsorships which did not allow the public time to familiarize themselves with the competition. But the financial gain of a Wembley final was not to be lightly dismissed and has resulted in some outstanding attendance figures.

In recent seasons, too, several Premiership clubs have not taken the League Cup seriously chiefly because of European commitments, though the Football League has managed to keep the prize of the winners competing in the UEFA Cup. Further exemption from early rounds has been used as a sweetener for them.

It should also be remembered that the Football League embarked on its 100th League Championship at the start of 1998-99 and the following records reflect the preservation of their competition throughout this edition.

TEST MATCHES AND PLAY-OFFS

A system of promotion and relegation was introduced in 1893 after the first season of two divisions in the Football League. The bottom three clubs in the First Division met the top three in the Second Division. Only three matches were played between teams from different divisions and played on neutral grounds. The winners either remained in the top division or gained promotion to it.

After three seasons of this formula, the system was revised at the end of 1895-96 when the bottom two teams in the First Division played each of the top two in the Second Division twice. Promotion and relegation was decided on a points basis from the resulting League table.

However, at the end of the 1898-99 season these Test matches were scrapped, largely it was believed because of the situation which arose when Stoke, bottom of the First Division, were due to meet Burnley, top of the Second Division. A draw would have been sufficient for both teams to obtain places in the First Division and surprisingly the game ended goalless.

Thereafter promotion and relegation was confined to finishing positions, until the institution of play-offs at the end of the 1986-87 season. At first the 12 clubs concerned comprised the team finishing directly above those relegated from the first three divisions, plus the three in each division immediately beneath the automatically promoted team. Home and away matches were used. This system remained for two seasons only.

Since then, teams facing relegation have not been asked to participate in the play-offs which have been confined to four teams in each of either the Second, Third and Fourth divisions or after the formation of the Premier League, those in divisions One, Two and Three. However it was in 1990 that the finals were switched to Wembley, omitting the necessity for home and away games at this stage of the competition.

Attendances themselves have vindicated the decision to introduce play-offs. Several clubs have reported their highest ever crowds at such games and those held at Wembley have frequently surpassed those attending England international fixtures.

In 1990 on Bank Holiday Monday, a crowd of 72,873 saw Swindon Town beat Sunderland 1-0. Ironically, Swindon were denied their place in the First Division because of 'financial irregularities', giving Sunderland an unexpected reprieve. Strangely enough, Swindon were also involved in another huge crowd when 73,802 watched them beat Leicester City 4-3 on 31 May 1993. Then on 25 May 1998, some 77,739 spectators witnessed the most dramatic final produced by the competition when Charlton Athletic beat Sunderland 7-6 on penalties after a 4-4 draw.

RECORD ATTENDANCES

English League attendances peaked in the early post-war years. In 1948-49 a total of 41,271,414 spectators was recorded for the 1848 games in the four divisions, when a million spectators watched football each week. However, with few exceptions, crowds fell in succeeding seasons. The post-war low point was reached in 1985-86 when only 16,488,577 spectators attended 2028 League games. But the trend was reversed by the introduction of play-offs in 1986-87 saw a steady increase sustained in subsequent seasons.

In 1937-38, the Football League's half-centenary season, the figures had been 28,132,933 for 1848 matches, an average of 15,225 per game. The nearest post-war figure to that was 28,194,146 in 1970-71, but for 2028 games. While understandably attendances at wartime regional matches fell dramatically in the early war years, by the end of hostilities there was already the basis of a boom, with a population of young people already drawn to watching the game and servicemen starved of entertainment ready to swell the crowds at matches.

Now with all-seater stadia the vogue, clubs moving to new premises and reduced accommodation, the clamour for tickets has increased, despite the saturation levels of television coverage.

SCOTTISH FOOTBALL

THE SCOTTISH FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION AND SCOTTISH LEAGUE

The Scottish Football Association was formed at a meeting of seven clubs at Dewar's Hotel, 11 Bridge Street, Glasgow on 13 March 1873. The representatives came from Clydesdale, Dumbreck, Eastern, Granville, Queen's Park, Third Lanark and Vale of Leven. Kilmarnock had also sent a letter expressing support for the organisation.

Archibald Rae, the secretary of Queen's Park, the oldest football club in Scotland and formed by the members of Glasgow YMCA in July 1967, was the prime mover behind the formation of the association and became its secretary.

Following the pattern of the Football Association in England, the Scots also instituted a cup competition, purchased a trophy and 12 medals for the winners at a cost of £56.12s.11d. Sixteen clubs participated in the first competition: Alexandra, Blythswood, Callander, Clydesdale, Dumbarton, Dumbreck, Eastern, Granville, Kilmarnock, Queen's Park (the eventual winners), Renton, Rovers, Southern, Third Lanark Volunteer Rifles, Vale of Leven and Western. Both Vale of Leven against Dumbarton and Southern against Third Lanark scratched.

The first ties took place on 23 October 1873 but the early years were not without their problems. In 1879 Vale of Leven were awarded the cup after Rangers refused to replay, claiming a legitimate goal had been wrongly disallowed. In 1884, Vale were due to meet Queen's Park but asked for a postponement because of injury and illness. The Scottish FA insisted Vale of Leven play. Queen's Park appeared, ran the ball into the vacant goal and were awarded the Cup. There were two further instances of dispute between finalists, but the worst affair concerned Celtic and Rangers in 1909. The Scottish FA withheld the cup following a riot at the replay, which ended in a draw, fearing further trouble.

When the Scottish League was set up on 30 April 1890, Queen's Park did not join. Professionalism had yet to be officially embraced in Scotland and Queen's Park, staunch supporters of the amateur way to this day, initially at least were inclined to stay out of the new League.

The original eleven clubs were: Abercorn, Celtic, Cowlairs, Cambuslang, Dumbarton, Hearts, Rangers, St Mirren, Renton, Third Lanark and Vale of Leven. After just five matches, Renton were expelled for having played against St Bernard's, thinly disguised as Edinburgh Saints, who had been designated as a professional club by the Scottish FA.

Renton were forgiven for the following season, a Second Division was formed in 1893 from the Alliance League and two divisions of ten teams continued until the turn of the century when more clubs were admitted including Queen's Park. Oddly enough, Renton also became the first club to be relegated. Clubs in the lower division had to rely on First Division teams electing them into the top echelon.

Although the Scottish Cup was suspended, the Scottish League continued to operate throughout the First World War, maintaining just one division. In 1915 the 14 Second Division clubs decided to abandon their competition and regionalize into Eastern and Western Leagues. It had been envisaged that a similar scheme would apply to the First Division, but this was not possible as the top division had already laid plans for the 1915-16 season. In order to make up the fixtures, some Central League clubs were invited to play in the two regional sections.

However, in the succeeding war years, several clubs dropped out and there was no Eastern League at all in 1918-19. With the war over, the Scottish League maintained its one division although membership was extended from 18 to 22 clubs. Those former Second Division clubs left out were forced to go back to regional fare. In 1919-20, the Eastern League was re-formed with Dundee and Raith Rovers even fielding their reserve teams in it. The Central League meanwhile had a distinctly Second Division look about it, with Falkirk and Hearts reserves included. Feelings ran high the following close season when it was again apparent that the Scottish League had no intention of reinstating the Second Division. The clubs affected resigned and helped to swell a Central League increased from 14 to 18 clubs. Such was the success of the new competition that at the end of the season, the leading clubs in the First Division reluctantly agreed to re-form the Second Division and institute automatic promotion and relegation, which pre-war had been an arbitrary function.

Having accepted such democracy, further efforts were made with the introduction of a Third Division in 1923, but this was short-lived, surviving only two full seasons. The next break came in the Second World War when both divisions were stopped and regional football instituted, though this time sanctioned. Then in 1946 the success of the Southern League Cup during the war years prompted the Scottish League to start a League Cup of its own. At the same time another attempt was made to start a Third Division, called C Division as the two others were then known as A and B. In its first three seasons the winners gained admittance to the B Division. The League was then divided into north-east and south-west sections and largely taken over by reserve teams, though Brechin City and Stranraer played in it for a time. It was discontinued in 1955 when the Reserve League was formed.

Goal difference replaced goal average in the 1971-72 season. And major reorganisation took place in 1975 when the top 10 clubs in the First Division formed the new Premier Division, while the bottom eight plus the top six of the Second Division formed Division One. The remainder continued in Division Two. Clubs in the ten-team Premier met each other twice each home and away.

But because the lower two 14-team divisions were still playing just once home and away, a Spring Cup was introduced to extend the fixture list, the clubs in the First and Second divisions guaranteed at least six games in a sectionalized league system before the knock-out stage. It was not a success and for the 1976-77 season, the two lower divisions played each other three times. Dissatisfaction with the structure still lingered and in 1986 the top two divisions became 12-team leagues, each playing 44 matches. It lasted two seasons before reverting to the previous formula, only to return in 1991-92. Yet more reorganisation took place at the end of the 1993-94 season when four divisions were created, assisted by the admission of two new clubs, Ross County and Caledonian Thistle.

Only one club was promoted from Division 1 and Division 2. The three relegated from the Premier joined with teams finishing second to seventh in Division 1 to form the new Division 1. Five relegated from Division 1 combined with those who finished second to sixth to form a new Division 2 and the bottom eight in Division 2 linked with the two newcomers to form a new Division 3. There remained a strong desire on the part of the leading clubs of the Premier Division to operate more independently of the rest of the Scottish League. A further move towards this goal came at the end of the 1994-95 season when only one automatic promotion place was granted to the First Division. The team finishing as runners-up met the second from bottom in the Premier Division in a play-off. At the end of the 1997-98 season, the nine clubs remaining in the Premier Division plus the promoted team from Division 1 formed a breakaway Premier League, in the style of the competition in England and there was no play-off option for another club.

EUROPEAN FOOTBALL

EUROPEAN CUP

The idea of a competition between leading clubs in various European countries seems so obvious that in hindsight it is surprising it did not materialise until 1955. But the credit for the idea of the European Cup belongs solely to Gabriel Hanot, a football writer with the French sports newspaper L'Equipe. However, discussions had been held as long ago as 1938 and but for the war, may have happened earlier.

Hanot, a former French international who would have played more than 12 times for his country but for the First World War, was of pensionable age by the time UEFA, the European governing body, was formed in 1954. But neither they nor FIFA appeared interested in his plans. So Hanot decided to take a more positive approach than merely conducting the discussion through the columns of his newspaper. He invited delegates from 18 countries to attend a meeting in Paris in the spring of 1955. Only three failed to arrive: Scotland's Hibernian sent a telegram of support, while Sparta Prague and Moscow Dynamo pleaded fixture problems and weather difficulties for their non-acceptance.

The meeting was a total success and plans were drawn up for a tournament to start in the following autumn. FIFA, fearing a threat to its authority, sanctioned the idea with the proviso that clubs entering had to have permission from their national association. UEFA fell in line and agreed to organise it.

Because of the stipulation that clubs had to obtain permission and other factors, Hanot's original 18 was reduced to 12. Chelsea, the Football League champions, were forbidden to enter by the misguided insularity which was so often an English trait. The excuse was 'fixture congestion', Gwardia Warsaw (Poland) replaced them, while PSV Eindhoven of the Netherlands and Denmark's Aarhus took over from Holland Sport and KB Copenhagen respectively. But neither the Czechs nor the Soviets participated. Voros Lobogo replaced Honved from Hungary.

Hibernian, who had finished fifth in the Scottish League, did well to reach the semi-finals. All ties until the final were played on a home and away basis with the aggregate of goals deciding the winner. The first final was appropriately held in Paris and won by Real Madrid, who beat the French entry Reims 4-3.

The competition, which had started with a match between Sporting Lisbon and Partizan Belgrade on 4 September 1955 in the Portuguese capital, had immediately proved an enormous success, producing exciting football and financial rewards for the competitors. Its popularity quickly increased and, after the initial tournament, entry was restricted to national league champions, although the country of the holders could enter their league winners as well.

Real Madrid dominated the early years, winning the first five series and reaching a peak in the 1960 final when they defeated Eintracht Frankfurt (West Germany) 7-3 at Hampden Park, Glasgow before a crowd of 135,000. It took another seven years before the Scots were able to applaud victory of their own, away in Lisbon against Internazionale, the Italian club which had come to epitomise the defensive by-product of the European Cup. Celtic achieved a 2-1 win in what was their first season in the competition.

The following year, Manchester United, who had been England's first representatives in 1956-57, albeit against Football League advice, won it in the country's first successful attempt. They defeated Benfica (Portugal) 4-1 after extra time at Wembley in 1968. These two British successes did more in the overall scheme of the competition than merely provide cause for rejoicing in these islands. They broke the monopoly which the Latin countries had enjoyed, as previously only Spanish, Portuguese and Italian teams had triumphed.

Though AC Milan won their second European Cup in 1969, Feyenoord succeeded for Holland in 1970 and spurred their countrymen from Ajax, whose brand of 'total' football swept aside the negative approach of others, to three successive trophies.

West Germany's Bayern Munich emulated the Dutchmen's feat from 1974 to 1976, before Liverpool stamped their individual style on the European Cup in 1977, one of four trophies to fall to the Anfield club. In fact, English teams did exceptionally well in the years that followed. Nottingham Forest won it in consecutive years and Aston Villa achieved another triumph of their own in 1982. Indeed, the Cup did not leave England after 1977 until 1983.

Unfortunately, England's challenge ended in tragedy at the Heysel Stadium in Brussels in 1985 when a group of rioting Liverpool followers caused the deaths of 39 fans, most of whom were Italian supporters of Juventus. English clubs were banned from European competition as a result.

Although this was the greatest disaster to hit the competition, increased misbehaviour by supporters of various clubs around Europe has brought in its wake the closure of grounds, fines and the suspension of clubs. But the competition has survived and shows no sign of decreasing in its popularity, although the pressures have grown alarmingly as the necessity to win has overshadowed all other aspects.

English clubs were readmitted in 1991 and the clamour for a super league among Europe's elite grew in intensity. The following year in an effort to thwart this ambition, UEFA introduced a Champions League of two divisions into the European Cup after the initial stages from the quarter-final onwards.

Further changes followed in 1995 when four groups of four were switched to replace the first and second rounds, with the knock-out stage following. At the same time there was a gradual introduction of a two-tier system of entry, those countries without a history of success in the competition being moved into the UEFA Cup, as further evidence of a shift towards a European elite.

In 1997-98 a further relaxation of the concept that the competition stood for champions came when leading countries were allowed to add their league runners-up, but it did little to satisfy the rich clubs anxious to form a European Super League, some 60 years after the idea was first mooted.

EUROPEAN CUP-WINNERS' CUP

The success of the European Cup prompted a call for the winners of national cup competitions to have their own tournament. But not all Europe's members had regularly competed for cups and the initial years had few entries. However, its own momentum convinced those who had been lukewarm about knockout tournaments, to revive their own domestic cups and thus become involved in the Cup-Winners's Cup. It also became possible for the beaten finalists in a national cup to enter, if the winners had already been crowned champions of their league.

Honours have been widespread in this competition, a dozen different countries winning it. Before the ban imposed on them, English clubs had won the Cup-Winners' Cup five times, more than any other country.

It was also the first competition to provide an English club with success in Europe, when Tottenham Hotspur convincingly defeated the holders Atletico Madrid 5-1 in 1963. Two years later West Ham United emulated this feat and at the start of the 1970s, British clubs enjoyed consecutive titles through Manchester City (1970), Chelsea (1971) and Rangers (1972). Manchester United also signalled the return of English clubs to the continent by winning the Cup-Winners' Cup in 1991.

FAIRS CUP AND UEFA CUP

If Gabriel Hanot had been the instigator of the European Cup, Ernst Thommen, a Swiss vice-president of FIFA, was the man behind the International Inter-Cities Fairs Cup competition, with its lengthy title and unwieldly time-scale. Its initial tournament was spread over three years.

The formation of UEFA provided the opportunity to put the idea of the competition into practice and probably because of their involvement in the Fairs Cup, UEFA reacted coolly to the European Cup. Representatives from 10 countries covering 12 cities met in April 1955 to formulate plans. Initially entrants represented cities that held trade fairs and wherever possible, fixtures were designed to coincide with such events. However, the selection of each city's team was left to the individual country and provided differing interpretations. Barcelona was represented by all but one player from the Barca club, the remaining player coming from Espanol, but in contrast London chose from all professional clubs in the metropolis.

After the second tournament, which took two years, it was decided to hold it every year with one team representing each city. Although the Fairs Cup had increased in size and popularity, losing its original need with the trade fairs, it required a complete relaxation of this rule.

In 1971 the Fairs Cup was replaced by the UEFA Cup and this regularly provided for 64 teams; the number of places per country being decided on previous performance and monitored each season. Since entry is restricted to the highest placed teams in each country, it could be said that the UEFA Cup is second in prestige to the European Cup itself.

This point became even more emphasised when UEFA decided to screen entries for the European Cup, giving the UEFA Cup the champion clubs from an array of countries and increasing the total number of entries to the competition.

With few exceptions, the final had always been decided over two legs even from the earliest Fairs Cup days. But in 1998 it was decided that it would fall in line with the other two competitions and be held at one venue.

EUROPEAN SUPER CUP

Played annually, with several breaks in continuity, the Super Cup involves the respective winners of the European Cup and the Cup-Winners' Cup meeting each other, usually on a home and away basis. Finding suitable dates for the matches has remained a problem. In 1974 and 1981 the qualified teams could not agree on dates to meet each other and in 1985 the ban imposed on English teams meant that Everton were unable to play Juventus. On two occasions it was agreed to play just one game, simply because of fixture congestion.

The success of British clubs in Europe can be gauged from the following table:

British & Irish International Football

BRITISH INTERNATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

The first international matches were those involving England and Scotland. There were five such games before the first official fixture between the two countries in 1872. The man responsible for them was Charles Alcock, honorary secretary of the Football Association, who wrote to The Sportsman newspaper, inviting 'leading representatives of the Scottish and English sections' to submit their names for consideration. All five games were played at Kennington Oval, all produced at least one goal. When the first official fixture took place at the ground of the West of Scotland Cricket Club at Partick on 30 November 1872, perhaps there were already signs of the pressure brought about by competition. It ended in a goalless draw!

Scotland met Wales for the first time in 1876, England played the Welsh from 1879. England's initial game with Ireland came in 1882 and resulted in a record 13-0 win. Shortly afterwards Wales played the Irish. In 1884 after the first meeting between Ireland and Scotland, the home international series became a reality.

The format was a simple enough one. The four countries played each other once in a season, with home games in alternating seasons. Teams level on points at the top of the table shared the title as goal average or goal difference did not count in determining the winner, until the latter system was introduced in 1978-79.

Scotland won three of the initial four tournaments and shared the other with England. But by the start of the First World War in 1914, England had overtaken the Scots. Wales had won just once in 1906-07 and Ireland had their first triumph in the last season before the abandonment of the competition following the outbreak of hostilities.

When the Championship resumed in 1919-20, Wales were the winners and, in the years up to the beginning of the Second World War, won it on five more occasions. It was their last such success and Ireland had to wait until 1979-80 for their second title. Otherwise the English and the Scots dominated the Championship.

The 1980-81 series was abandoned when both England and Wales declined to play in Northern Ireland because of the political situation there. But interest in the entire tournament had been falling off except for the annual clash between England and Scotland. The 1983-84 competition proved to be the last as England subsequently refused to play either Northern Ireland or Wales and Scotland soon followed their action.

Of the 89 tournaments, including the one not completed, England achieved 34 titles outright, followed by Scotland with 24, Wales with seven and Northern Ireland with three. Of the shared honours, England had 20, Scotland 17, Wales and Northern Ireland five each.

England and Scotland continued to meet each other annually for a time, until this fixture became a problem because of the behaviour of some of those people attending it. Naturally the four countries have played each other when drawn together in either the World Cup qualifying competition or the European Championship.

As international contacts developed, the four home countries began playing foreign teams. For England, the first defeat abroad came against Spain in Madrid on 15 May 1929. England lost 4-3. The first home defeat came against the Republic of Ireland on 21 September 1949 at Goodison Park, when the visitors won 2-0. But the first reverse on home territory against a continental team occured when Hungary won 6-3 at Wembley on 25 November 1953.

Failure to enter any World Cup competition before 1950 clearly hampered the development of the British game. Though the four home countries were at odds with FIFA for much of the inter-war period, there were olive branches waved in the direction of the four home countries, but not grasped.

However, in 1966 when England not only staged the World Cup, but finished as winners, the mood had long since changed for the better.

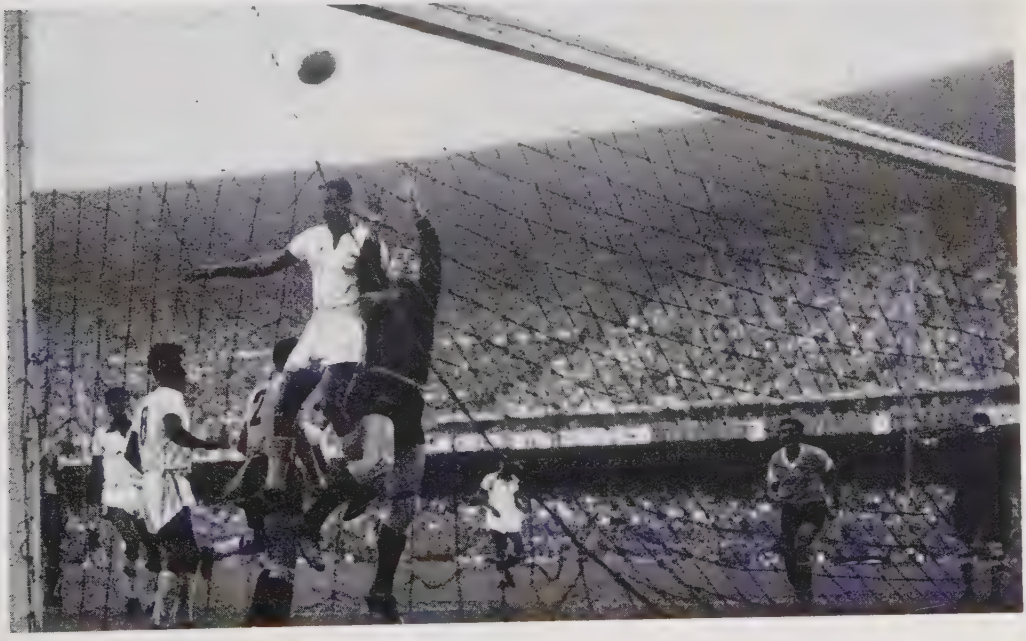
Jimmy Greaves, six hat-tricks for Chelsea in 1960–61. (Colorsport)

Jimmy Glazzard (striped shirt) soars in for one of his four headed goals for Huddersfield against Everton in 1953, all from centres supplied by Vic Metcalfe.

Ted MacDougall, an intoxicating one-over-the-eight performance for Bournemouth: nine FA Cup goals against Margate in 1971. (Colorsport)

Majed Abdullah of Saudi Arabia, the most capped player in the history of the game, 147 times – until FIFA investigated. (Popperfoto)

The last second of the 1950 World Cup final in the 200,000 capacity stadium in Rio. Referee George Reader signals it. Uruguay 2 Brazil 1.



Another 'spot-the-ball' disaster? England's Tommy Lawton in 1939 action against Scotland. He became unrivalled as a wartime goalscorer. (Syndication International)

Billy Wright, England's most consistent post-war international and first centurion of caps. (Colorsport)

Just Fontaine, a mere marksman; 13 goals for France in the 1958 World Cup finals. (Colorsport)

The bearded Lord Kinnaird with more FA Cup final appearances than anyone, nine of them. (Popperfoto)

Unusual Alf Common, the first £1,000 transfer man. (Colorsport)

Norman Whiteside of Northern Ireland in 1982 at 17 years 42 days, the youngest player to appear in the World Cup finals.

End of an era: the last British Home International match, Wembley 1984. (Associated Sports Photography)

Michael Owen (Liverpool), England's youngest both as a goalscorer and twentieth century debutant for the national side. (Colorsport)

Ray Crawford horizontally completes Colchester's FA Cup giant-killing act against Leeds United in 1971. (Syndication International)

⚽ WORLD FOOTBALL ⚽

FIFA

The Federation Internazionale de Football Associations was founded in 1904 by representatives from seven European countries: France, Belgium, Denmark, Holland, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland. Membership is now worldwide and embraces 198 different nations. It is the game's controlling body.

The first meeting on 21 May 1904 had been largely prompted by C.A.W. Hirschman, a Dutch banker and Robert Guerin, the man behind the formation of the French FA. In the years leading up to that meeting, both men had tried to enlist the support of the English FA but without success, as England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales already had their own International Board and looked upon the continentals as upstarts. However, over the next few years, they were gradually persuaded to join. England actually agreed in 1905 and the following year, Daniel Burley Woolfall, a member of the FA Council, was elected President of FIFA in succession to Guerin, to underline the esteem in which the English FA was held.

Britain's International Board was still responsible for the Laws of the Game, but in 1913 FIFA was given representation on the Board. However, they were voted out in 1920 when Britain withdrew from FIFA.

In fact, the First World War and its aftermath almost caused the breakup of FIFA. The four British countries, supported by France, Belgium and Luxembourg, decided to boycott Germany and her former allies. But the Scandinavians were adamant that they would play any of the pre-war members, regardless of political attitude. The British isolated themselves, stating they would argue for the expulsion of any country that was prepared to play against those of the Central Powers. There was a real danger that the organisation would either split or disintegrate completely. But the crisis passed when the British left FIFA in 1920.

The four home countries returned in 1924 but it proved a shortlived reunification as, four years later, they quit again over the subject of broken-time payments to amateur players in the Olympics. Moreover, this time they stayed away from FIFA until 1946.

Meanwhile FIFA's membership grew appreciably from the seven original countries to 41 by the time of the first World Cup in 1930. Though the British countries were still outside the body they kept their contacts through membership of the International Board. As more countries joined FIFA, it became essential to divide the membership into geographical areas. The South Americans had been the first to recognise this aspect and had formed their own organisation as far back as 1916. It was not until 1954 when first the Union of European Football Associations as a subsidiary to FIFA and was followed the same year by the Asian Football Confederation. Since then the Confederation Africaine de Football (1957) representing Africa, Concacaf (1961) for North and Central America and the Caribbean, and Oceania (1966) have strengthened the global aspect of the organisation.

Of course, the privileges which the British retain have produced jealousy among other nations. From time to time there have been moves to reduce the four members to just one (Britain), since politically there has been no division between them until recently when both Wales and Scotland have opted for a separate assembly to deal with their domestic matters.

FIFA itself has committees on various subjects from finance, referees, indoor football, technical development, sports medicine, players' status, legal problems, security, the media, protocol, discipline, appeals as well as panels of experts on these and other facets. Every two years a congress is held to discuss important issues which have arisen.

Apart from the World Cup, FIFA is responsible for the Olympic Football Tournament, which since 1992 has been for Under-23 teams, these other World Championships: Under-20, Under-17, Futsal (Indoor) and Women's.

FIFA Presidents: Robert Guerin (France) 1904-06; Daniel Burley Woolfall (England), 1906-18; Jules Rimet (France) 1921-54; Rodolphe William Seeldrayers (Belgium) 1954-55; Arthur Drewry (England) 1955-61; Sir Stanley Rous (England) 1961-74; Joao Havelange (Brazil) 1974-98; Joseph Blatter (Switzerland) 1998-.

THE WORLD CUP

In 1921 Jules Rimet, a French lawyer, became President of FIFA and the possibility of a World Cup came closer, though it took years of lengthy persuasion on his part to convince others to accept the concept. His efforts were assisted in a practical way by Uruguay coming over from South America to win the Olympic Games football tournaments in Europe in 1924 and 1928.

Rimet, born 24 October 1873 in Theuley-les-Lavancourt, had been the founder of the Red Star Club in Paris the same year that FIFA was formed. In 1910, he became President of the League and founded the French Football Association on 11 April 1919. He remained President until 1949. Appointed temporary President of FIFA during the 1920 Olympics, his appointment was confirmed on 1 March 1921.

Although there had been universal approval among the members, FIFA's meeting in 1926 had brought a strong plea from Henri Delaunay, secretary of the French Federation, that an international football tournament at the highest level could no longer be confined to the Olympics because of professionalism. However, at the 1928 Congress the proposals put forward by Delaunay, were carried with over 80 percent of the members in favour of the project. The voting was 25 to 5 in favour, four of the Scandinavian countries and Estonia voting against.

Six countries – Italy, Holland, Hungary, Sweden, Spain and Uruguay – applied to stage the finals. But Sweden had even voted against the idea! In May 1929 at the Barcelona Congress, it was agreed that a World Cup competition would be held the following year. Uruguay was the obvious choice. They had proved their playing ability with two Olympic gold medals, the country was celebrating its independence centenary in 1930 and they promised to underwrite the costs of the competing countries and provide modest spending money.

It was only then that enthusiasm began to wane. Few European countries could afford to send a team to South America, since the players would be away from home for at least two months, travelling to and from the venue by boat. Had it not been for the intervention of Rimet himself, France would not have entered and neither would Belgium, but for the insistence of their FIFA representative, Rudolphe Seeldrayers. Romania and Yugoslavia were the only other European acceptors. King Carol of Romania actually selected his team and succeeded in obtaining time off from work for the players who were chosen to undertake the journey.

All four European teams travelled together. The luxury liner Conte Verde set sail from Genoa on 21 June. Rimet was accompanied by his daughter. In his luggage, he carried the World Cup trophy, a gold cup designed by Abel Lafleur, a French sculptor. It took two weeks and the players did exercises below and trained on deck. Fifteen days later, the ship docked in Montevideo five hours late.

South America dominated the overall entry. Uruguay had also guaranteed a new ground and work on the Centenario Stadium in Montevideo was started in February. It remained unfinished at the beginning of the tournament despite day and night construction, because of intermittent rain. Thus though there were 13 finalists and the tournament began on the July 13, it was not an unlucky baptism, despite opening matches being played either at the Pocitos or Parque Central grounds while the main stadium was being completed. The teams were split into four groups, one of four and three of three, with the winners meeting in the semi-finals. Uruguay beat Argentina 4-2 in an all-South American final.

Apart from the doubtful political aspect, Italy was a good choice as the host nation in 1934 for the second tournament. Dictator Mussolini was determined to make as much capital out of the competition as possible, but it had taken eight meetings of FIFA to agree to the Italian venue.

Thirty-two countries originally entered and were geographically grouped in 12 sections of a qualifying tournament. Uruguay, piqued by the lack of interest shown four years earlier and worried by domestic matters, did not enter. Even Italy had to play a qualifying game with Greece.

This time the 16 finalists were paired in a knock-out round, eight seeded, the matches being played in eight different cities. Italy, the favourites, won the final 2-1 after extra time against Czechoslovakia.

Four years later the Italians retained the World Cup in France beating Hungary 4-2 in Paris as the war clouds were gathering on the continent. Already the sound of hostilities had been heard in two of the countries who qualified and the atmosphere was charged with apprehension.

Of the 36 entries, Austria found themselves overrun by Germany after qualifying and Spain was embroiled in a civil war. Neither Uruguay nor Argentina entered. England, though not in FIFA, was invited but declined. Austria's withdrawal gave Sweden a walkover in the knockout system, while Italy had a first round bye.

The 1940 Congress due to be held in Luxembourg was postponed because of the Second World War. The Jules Rimet trophy itself had an adventurous time, being secreted by Italian officials, fearful that the Nazis would confiscate the statuette. It even spent some time in a shoe box under the bed of secretary Dr. Ottorino Barassi!

With Europe rebuilding in the aftermath of the war, it would have been impossible for stage the 1946 finals and Brazil was chosen for the fourth tournament. At the FIFA Congress of 1946, the World Cup was named the Jules Rimet trophy. The entire South American continent had been unaffected by the ravages of war, but overall only 31 teams entered including the British associations for the first time.

The Home Championship was used as part of the qualification, with two places guaranteed in the finals.

But after England beat Scotland 1-0 at Hampden Park, the Scots declined to go as merely runners-up. The finalists were required to travel enormous distances and there were problems persuading teams to compete. France, originally eliminated, were invited to take part when Turkey withdrew, but decided not to go. India who had not had to qualify because of withdrawals, were informed by FIFA that they could not play barefooted!

Thus again only 13 teams lined up for the finals, but this time they were drawn in four groups with Uruguay having just one opponent Bolivia in their section. The four winners then met in a final group, so there was no actual final match. Perhaps it was as well the two best placed teams, Brazil the favourites and Uruguay, met on the last day. But it was Uruguay who caused the surprise, winning 2-1 at the Maracana Stadium in Rio with almost 200,000 in attendance. Yet the finals will be remembered as much for the biggest upset in world football, England's 1-0 defeat by the USA in Belo Horizonte.

In 1954 it was back to Europe and Switzerland. Here again the favourites Hungary were beaten. West Germany, after readmission to FIFA four years earlier, won 3-2 in Berne following an eccentrically-organised tournament in which two seeded teams in each of the four groups did not play each other. It enabled teams to rest players for some games.

Thirty-eight teams had entered the Swiss finals, but for Sweden in 1958 there were 46 of the original 53 who applied playing in 89 qualifying matches. All four home countries reached the finals and had brief moments of success. Hosts Sweden even had an English manager, George Raynor, with an ageing team of players brought back from exile in Italy. They reached the final, but bowed to the superiority of Brazil 5-2.

Chile, courageously held the 1962 finals, despite suffering an earthquake the year before. Brazil retained the cup in a tournament dominated by defensive-minded football, beating Czechoslovakia 3-1 in the final. Only 56 entries had been received for the tournament, but it increased to 71 for finals in England.

The hosts improved as the tournament progressed and deservedly beat West Germany 4-2 in extra time at Wembley, though in somewhat controversial circumstances. Geoff Hurst's hat-trick, the only one in the history of the final itself, came from a header from a free-kick quickly taken while the referee was admonishing an opponent; a shot in-off the crossbar which was given on consultation with a badly positioned linesman 10 yards from the goal-line and the third with three spectators on the pitch.

While there had been isolated matches of an unpleasant nature in previous finals – Italy v Spain 1934; the Battle of Berne between Hungary and Brazil 20 years later and the Battle of Santiago in Chile 1962, here was a cynical departure.

Players apparently fouling in rotation to escape punishment by referees and total of five players sent off: two Argentines, two Uruguayans and a Soviet. Four of these dismissals were against the often provocative Germans, the fifth Argentine captain Antonio Rattin dismissed by German referee Rudfolf Kreitlein for 'violence of the tongue'.

There were understandable fears that the 1970 finals in Mexico would have to cope with similar problems as well as those of heat and altitude, were happily dispelled. Certainly the use of yellow cards provided such a deterrent, that referees did not have to show any of the red variety. Brazil emerged as ultimate winners, with arguably some of the most gifted players to have appeared in a final. They beat Italy 4-1. Having achieved three successes, Brazil were allowed to retain the World Cup. It was replaced by the FIFA World Cup, designed by the Italian sculptor Silvio Gazamiga. Made of solid gold, thirty-six cm high and insured for £1.8 million. Alas, the Jules Rimet Cup was stolen in Brazil and never seen again. But the Brazilians were given a replica for their trophy cabinet.

Having had one fewer entry in 1970, the 1974 finals in West Germany were supported by 99 entries. FIFA's technical study of the tournament revealed that the two teams which consistently produced the highest ratio of penetrating attacks were the finalists, West Germany and Holland.

Yet of the three goals in the final, two came from the penalty spot and the Dutch concept of 'total' football was let down by poor finishing. Germany won 2-1. Goalscoring as a whole touched a new low. Instead of a quarter-final knockout round, the eight qualifiers were split into two further groups of four, causing more games where teams could determine their opponents at the next stage.

With 106 entries for the 1978 finals, Argentina became the third host nation to win the competition in the last four tournaments. Again the Dutch had to settle for runners-up medals, losing 3-1 after extra time.

But there was controversy over the manner in which Argentina were able to enter the match with Peru knowing how many goals were required to overtake Brazil on goal difference.

Three players were sent off in the tournament, 58 cautioned, goalscoring was only marginally better than in 1974 with only two coming from free-kicks and one from a corner. Several long range efforts eased the general feeling that defences were too strong.

Two more countries entered in 1982 than four years previously for the finals in Spain. Italy won its third cup after an uninspired group start drawing all their section games as did Cameroon, but progress by 'superior' goalscoring: two goals to one. England, too, retired from the competition, early but undefeated. The restriction to sudden death only from the semi-finals, merely increased the problems over games with either little meaning or those open to abuse by the contestants sizeing up their options.

However, for the first time the number of final places had been increased from 16 to 24 and this allowed third world countries, hitherto given little or no recognition in final placings, the incentive to compete.

This was the World Cup of packed midfield and negativity, though there were more goals about as the standard of some finalists became questionable. Italy beat West Germany 3-1 in the final.

By 1986, TV had taken over the schedule of matches for the finals in Mexico, ensuring games being played in the hottest part of the day with no time added on for stoppages. In the heat and humidity of Monterrey, only nine goals were scored in the six group games played there. Despite this and the unsatisfactory method of deciding matches by penalty kicks, it was probably the best tournament since the previous effort in the same country in 1970.

Arguably the finest match was the quarter-final between France and Brazil, tragically determined by a penalty shoot-out. The player of the tournament was Diego Maradona of Argentina, who save for his outrageous handball goal against England, was almost unplayable at times. Argentina defeated West Germany 3-2.

A record 119 countries had entered. This time six groups of four teams necessitated a reversion to a knockout system for the last 16 teams and helped in the overall improvement.

Seven fewer teams entered the 1990 finals held in Italy. In a reversal of the previous final, West Germany beat Argentina with a disputed penalty five minutes before time. The game itself was an appalling advertisement for the world championship after an undistingished tournament. Argentina had two players sent off.

FIFA's insistence on referees officiating to the letter of the law resulted in 164 bookings and 16 dismissals, from this total the Argentines alone had 22 yellow and three red cards.

FIFA's scarcely concealed attempts to promote the game in the USA were finally given sanction by holding the 1994 finals there. Save that the final was decided on penalties, Brazil the better team did triumph over Italy, having had 22 goals attempts to their opponents eight during the match.

Once more referees were under instruction to punish offenders, the tackle from behind being the most focused. It left 15 red and 227 yellow cards flashed. The perhaps curious North American public supported the games well enough to such an extent that the average crowd of 68,604 was a World Cup record. Moreover, there was little or no report of hooliganism.

There were 32 finalists for the 1998 tournament in France, 64 matches – 12 more than ever before, more dismissals at 22 and more cautions numbering 257. Goalscoring was marginally up on 1994 and at least the final was decided by open play, the first such result since 1986. France again proved that host nations invariably do well, becoming the six such to win the trophy, though Brazil were hugely disappointing in the final. But paradoxically, the lasting reflection surrounding France 98 was that there would be none.

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONSHIP

Originally known as the European Nations Cup, UEFA the European governing body changed the title to the European Championship in 1968. The trophy for the winners is the Henri Delaunay Cup, named after the secretary of the French Football Federation who first thought up the idea of a competition for national teams in Europe, which was way behind the enterprise of the New World countries with their South American Championship dating from 1916.

With the growth in membership of UEFA, the tournament has increased in size and stature. For the initial competition which ended in 1960, only 17 countries entered. The four British teams predictably showed no interest, but surprisingly neither did West Germany nor Italy. Teams played each other on a home and away basis with aggregate scores counting, while only from the semi-finals was the tournament staged by the chosen host country, who had to compete from the first round.

The same formula was adopted for the second competition with Spain hosting the final stages, but there was an increase in the number of entries to 29, including England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Spain not only reached the final, but beat the Soviet Union 2-1 in Madrid before a crowd of 120,000. It was a massive relief for the organisers that the match was played at all, since when the two countries had been drawn together in the quarter-finals of the first tournament, Spain had refused to play on political grounds and were disqualified.

Interest and crowds having increased from the first competition, UEFA decided to expand the Nations Cup still further. From the 31 entries for the 1968 tournament, with only Iceland of the then UEFA members not competing, the teams were split into seven groups of four teams and one of three, playing on a league basis, with the top two in each going into a quarter-final over two legs. All four British countries entered and the home international tournament was used for this purpose over two years. Again the semi-finals were held in one country and the organisers were fortunate again that Italy went on to win it after a replayed final. However, they had only reached the last stage having won on the toss of a coin following a semi-final draw with the USSR.

For the 1972 series, Belgium was chosen as the host country for the finals and again UEFA were fortunate that the Belgians managed to stay in the competition until the last four, finishing in third place. Yugoslavia staged the 1976 tournament. The same system of league and then home and away aggregate scores was used until the semi-finals. Yugoslavia finished fourth.

Clearly the risks of continuing such an idea were too great. For the 1980 tournament, Italy as hosts were excused until the finals, this time decided on a group system with the last eight teams split into two groups, the winners meeting in the final, the runners-up deciding third and fourth places. Again the Italians could only finish fourth.

France, the 1984 hosts, produced arguably the finest football seen in the European Championships and deservedly won the title, while the match for third and fourth place was dispensed with. There was another slight alteration to the proceedings; the first two teams in each group met in the semi-finals. The 1988 series held in West Germany saw attendances for the 15 matches reach a new high.

Politics affected the 1992 competition. The USSR having qualified for the finals in Sweden, played under their new title of the Confederation of Independent States (CIS). Yugoslavia were banned from taking their final place because of the civil war in the country. Denmark, given a last minute reprieve, had to assemble a squad at short notice, but overcame the problem with immense character to become ultimate winners. They were only informed of the decision to reinstate them on 31 May. Their players were scattered away on holiday. Yet they were ready to play their first match on 11 June, to underline the fact that determination can often replace preparation. It was their first major honour.

With the World Cup planning to expand its final stages, it was time for UEFA to enlarge the European Championship. It was essential for another reason with the proliferation of states following the collapse of the Soviet Union and the breakup of Yugoslavia. For Euro 96 held in England, there were 16 finalists. Crowds topped the one million mark, though the final official average of 40,916 was lower than the 53,989 for the 1988 finals in West Germany.

SOUTH AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP

The South Americans were the first to organise international competition outside of the British International Championship. After an attempt by Argentina in 1910 to start a tournament, it became a fairly regular event from 1916. That year the four participating countries: Argentina (hosts), Brazil, Chile and Uruguay, announced the formation of the South American Confederation.

The South American Championships included unofficial tournaments and there was a break in the early 1930s when most countries in the region were introducing professionalism. In the 1960s the competition suffered after the advent of the Copa Libertadores for club sides, but there was a concerted effort to re-establish the South American Championships in 1975 and subsequently changing its title to the Copa America has given it a new impetus, held as it is every two years.

For the African continent, the African Nations Cup has grown in stature since its humble beginnings in 1957 when it became the third oldest continental championship. Political problems have affected it throughout its history, but it has been held every two years and has wide support from its members.

At club level, the African Champion Clubs Cup was introduced in 1964 and has also become a regular feature of the African calendar. It was not until 1975 that a Cup-Winners' Cup for the same continent was started, but this has also gained in interest and acceptance.

The New World also meets the Old World once a year in the World Club Championship. The winners of the Copa Libertadores play the European Cup holders. Finding suitable dates to stage the games which were supposed to be played on a home and away basis, was invariably a problem, until a permanent venue was found for it in Tokyo, Japan.

However, the other major tournament which affects all countries in the world is the Olympic Games tournament held every four years. After several attempts to introduce football to it, the 1908 Games held in London was the first official one, under the auspices of FIFA. Great Britain won it then and again in 1912. With the four home countries outside FIFA at the time and the fact that the USA failed to stage a football tournament at all in 1932, put the sport into a decline. Surprisingly, Great Britain, though still not back in FIFA membership, were able to enter a team in the 1936 Olympics.

The post-war era saw the competition revived, with the Eastern bloc countries completely dominating competition after competition. Though the non-amateur status of these countries caused controversy, there seemed little argument as the original Olympic ideals had long since passed away.

But when FIFA stipulated that no player who had played in the World Cup could appear in the Olympics, it at least persuaded many countries to use the tournament to bring on the best of their young players. France did it in 1984 to great effect. Now FIFA have wisely designated the tournament to be for Under-23 players, to ensure there will be no undermining of its own World Cup.

CENTURIONS

Sir Bobby Charlton did not receive 106 caps for England, though he did make that number of international appearances. His actual total of caps was just 87 because after 1953, England merely awarded one cap for matches in one season of the Home International Championship.

The word 'cap' is, of course, a convenient short-form for international appearance and applies universally, but it has its origins in the headgear worn by the earliest footballers. The first minutes of the Nottingham Forest club revealed that the team's colours would be 'red caps' and for several years this was often the only means of distinguishing one team from another.

In September 1990, FIFA decreed that only games contested by the foremost national squad of each of the National Associations concerned can be classified as A internationals with matches against club sides and other non-national teams not qualifying. In July 1997 the leading 'centurion' was listed as Majed Abdullah of Saudi Arabia with 147 appearances. On 12 July 1998, FIFA stated that five of Abdullah's games could no longer be taken into account! First 'capped' in1978, his last match was in 1994 against Belgium at the age of 35. Since he has also been known as Majed Ahmed Mohammed, the confusion does not rest there.

Since FIFA only have a record of competitive matches under their jurisdiction, they rely on national associations to provide the list of players making a century of appearances. The entire process is subject to doubt, even among players who achieved their totals many years ago.

One such concerns Joszef Bozsik of Hungary who played 100 times for his country in the early post-war period. His caps include a match against a Moscow Selection in May 1952, before the USSR had resumed international fixtures later that year in the Olympic Games.

For many years Djalma Santos of Brazil was credited with 100 appearances at full international level. His actual number of games including those against club sides was 107, with ten of these outside the FIFA designation. But he has since been removed from the list.

With Abdullah's relegation to second place, the leader is Thomas Ravelli the Swedish goalkeeper with 143. Lothar Matthaus who played for Germany in the 1998 World Cup is third with 129, Andoni Zubizarreta of Spain fourth with 126 and Peter Shilton of England fifth on 125.

The first player to make 100 actual international appearances was the late Billy Wright of England, who completed his century in 1958 including a world record 70 consecutive appearances and ended his international career the following year.

THE BALL

The Book of Football (1905) put the basics of the game succinctly enough: 'The ball and the boot are the two most essential adjuncts to football.' At the time, footballs made in England were exported all over the world. Today, three-quarters of them are made in the Sialkot region of Pakistan.

No real description of the ball was made until the rules were revised in 1872, when it was agreed the ball 'must be spherical with a circumference of 27 to 28 inches' (68.6 to 71.1 cm). Once the Football League was formed in 1888, the mass production of footballs swiftly followed. Two of the earliest manufacturers were Mitre of Huddersfield and Thomlinson's of Glasgow. Other names followed including Frank Sugg, Feltham, Edward J. Page, John Vickers and even John Wisden. Kneen's of Manchester even boasted the Enigma Laceless football. Indeed there were other manufacturers, including R. G. Barlow, who experimented with valve inflated footballs as early as the 1890s.

In earlier days, by far the most widely used ball was the inflated bladder of an animal, invariably a pig and usually encased in cowhide leather. This came from the rump of the cattle for top of the range models, and for lesser grades from the shoulder of the animal. Pigs at least were spared when rubber bladders were used. Ironically, during his second visit to South America, Christopher Columbus had been surprised to see native Indians playing with a heavy, black ball made from vegetable gum, which rebounded in a way that it seemed alive. It took three centuries before the material was brought into commercial use in Europe, but then only to rub out lead pencil marks, hence indiarubber.

With minor improvements in design, the outer casing with an inner bladder was the generally accepted form of ball in operation for almost a quarter of a century even before the time the professional game began. The introduction of a carcass made from strong cloths encasing the bladder and inside the leather outer, helped to refine the produce. Synthetic paint and other non-porous materials were used to coat the leather to improve water resistance. The problem area was the lace which secured the tube through which air had to be pumped to inflate the bladder, the outer covering having to be laced across a 15 cm slot to accomodate the neck of the bladder. Though the stitching became more scientific and the method of insertion more subtle, there were accidents particularly to the eyes of players heading the ball. But the post-war replacement of the long-stem neck with a valve cured this particular headache.

Other manufacturers in addition to Adidas, flourished in the 1960s such as Minerva and Slazenger. Synthetic materials finally took over in the 1980s when they were able to emulate the cell structure of leather. The basic construction remains the same, the bladder which holds the air at pressure and the outer casing.

The outer surface usually comprises varying numbers of panels, either 18, 26 or 32. A 26-panel version will have more than 1,800 stitches in it, as crucial today as ever. Hand-twisted thread is still used as it guarantees evenly-tensioned seams over the entire ball.

It was claimed that the leather ball was hard, pliable of a lasting quality and waterproof. While it might have been true of its first three attributes, the last was not so. Saturated with water it often appeared to assume a weight similar to that of a medicine ball. The secret behind the successful manufacture of a football was in the technique used for stretching the leather to enable it to keep its shape. To this end the strength of the leather and the skill of the cutters and stitchers were of paramount importance.

However, by the 1950s, the bladder had been discarded and the encasement was the only covering. The white ball originally appeared in 1892, but it had to be dipped in whitewash. With the advent of floodlights in the 1950s, white footballs and also orange coloured ones were used for snow-covered pitches. Even so, in an advertising brochure produced by adidas in 1963, reference was still being made to the ball being heavy, brown and painful. Then came the revolution.

Adidas became associated with supplying footballs for use in the World Cup from 1970, having called its initial design the 'Santiago' after Chile's hosting of the 1962 World Cup. Other successors followed until for Mexico in 1970 the Telstar was used. A white leather ball with black pentagons, it has had a lasting significance as the symbol of the modern football. Four years later it was modified slightly as the Telstar-Chile and displayed in all white.

In 1978 came the Tango ball for the Argentina World Cup, but also used in the Olympics and European Championship. It was made of 32 individual sections with no indication of stitching. Four years on in Spain, came the Tango Espana, made of real leather and with sealed seams. It was available in several varieties. The Tango Mundial was the top of the range, tested in a wind tunnel, the Tango Alicante for floodlight matches, the Tango Malaga for hard grounds and the Tango Indoor for indoor games. The ball came in three colours, basic white, orange and yellow.

Back to Mexico in 1986 the Azteca Mexico was a hand-sewn ball made of synthetic material, consisting of an outer polyurethane wearing coat and three lower layers, which mutually complemented each other with their different structures, to ensure resistance, keep shape and retain waterproofness. It also depicted an Aztec mural within Tango triads.

Further progress was made by 1990 with the Etrusco Unico for the World Cup in Italy. This high-tech product was made entirely from the best synthetic fibres. The first covering consisted of textiles impregnated with latex for stability and tear resistance, the neoprene layer for water-proofing and the outer layer of polyurethane for bounce and non-scratch. The ball was also sewn together from 32 individual sections. The Etruscan lion head was placed within the Tango design.

After lengthy and widespread tests a further improvement was made in time for the 1994 finals in the USA. The Questra was manufactured from five different materials with a flexible but durable outer layer again made from polyurethane. As to the design, stars featured within the Tango triads.

In 1996 the onus for checking the ball no longer fell to the referee in matches under the auspices of FIFA or its six confederations. From that year more than 40 companies producing footballs earned licences to manufacture footballs carrying either the FIFA Approved or FIFA inspected logos. Before a ball can be approved it has to pass six tests: 1. Circumference; 2. Sphericity; 3. Rebound; 4. Water Absorption; 5. Weight; 6. Loss of Pressure. For the higher grade there is a seventh test: shape and size retention.

For France 98, the Tricolore was the first World Cup ball in colour. It represented a newly engineered hi-tech syntactic foam with improved compression and more explosive rebound characteristics, making it softer and faster than any of its predecessors. This particular foam was designed to make the ball more accurate and longer lasting. The symbols on the surface included a cockerel, a high-speed train and a turbine.

Claims that this made the ball lighter were not substantiated. It weighed no more than 450 g (16 oz), no less than 410 g (14 oz). That is in fact heavier than before the turn of the century when the comparative figures were 15 and 13 ozs.

THE BOOT

The boot revolution could be summed up by saying that when plimsoles were lighter, football boots were heavier; now trainers are often the weightier objects compared with players' footwear. Of course, leather was also the main component of the boot. In the earliest days of mass production, Messrs. Whitfield and Hodgson's huge press would cut the sole out of thick chrome leather as hard as iron and tough as oak. A smaller machine would cut out the stiff cap inserted into the toe of the boot. Then after the trimming came the lasting machine, as strong as a steel pair of hands to grip, clutch and pull the uppers and rivet in the required places. So much for the sole. The tops were hand cut to ensure a uniform standard, with the eye-letting done by machinery. The boots were kept for four months before sale.

This was considered at the turn of the century, the most up-to-date footwear for players, who once were happy to play in elastic-sided boots. Though the process was refined in the years that followed, there was little fundamental change.

Though most of the drastic alterations to equipment came in the wake of Hungary's devastating 6-3 win over England at Wembley in 1953, for boots at least, it should have happened much earlier. Just before the Second World War, a number of different designs were finding their way into this country from outside. Once hostilities broke out and servicemen went abroad, when there was time for playing football, they found themselves wearing boots which appeared to be totally unsuitable to home conditions. Yet many wondered if boots designed for warm climates and hard pitches could not be adapted for home use. Wartime research had also found new materials like nylon and polythene.

After purchasing a pair of boots, usually the smallest size into which you could squeeze your feet, you walked around in them. Once stretched a little, the process was repeated with a thin pair of socks and then with football stockings. Sitting in the bath in a new pair was another favourite way of moulding the boots to the requirements of the feet inside them.

In 1950 the Football Association asked the British Boot, Shoe and Allied Trades Research Association to revive the methods used. But again changes were slow. The Germans at Wembley in 1954 wore boots whose soles were of a natural rubber compound hardened and reinforced with high styrene resin. Slowly but surely the changes began to be implemented. Rubber studs replace leather moulded ones. Lighter soles, thinner uppers, light fibre in the soles to resist stud pressure and light fibre moulds on the toe-cap were introduced. Snug fitting with support for the heels, micro-cellular resin/rubber, resilient sponge in the toe.

Of course in 1998, boots are no longer always called as such. They are often referred to as shoes. A top of the range product from Puma, features the new Cellerator technology for constant reliability on a ground control outsole with Cell cushioning. The Umbro AS Speciali featured an upper in Ultimate K (Kangaroo), water resistant leather and memory flex outsole. The Mizuno Grandeza VT was described as a lightweight professional model. It featured soft water resistant leather upper, with new 13 studded Pebax/carbon glass-fibre outsole, combining screw-in and moulded studs, suitable for all ground conditions. Then there was the Italian crafted calfskin upper with a full grain leather tongue, DMX sockliner technology for extra cushioning in the Reebok DMX Evolution RS. The choice was endless.

NON-LEAGUE FOOTBALL

The English semi-professional non-league pyramid system was introduced to provide a structure to enable any club with the necessary resources to progress into the Football League via the Football Conference. This was originally known as the Alliance Premier League and founded in 1979-80 by leading clubs in the Southern and Northern Premier Leagues. The name was derived from the old Football Alliance and it was agreed that only one candidate would be put forward for election in any one year. Since then, three feeder leagues have operated a promotion and relegation system to and from the Conference: the Northern Premier, the Southern League and the Isthmian League. These leagues have each provided one team per season.

Below these competitions lie a regional system of various other feeder leagues, all with promotion and relegation within their own divisions.

CIGARETTE CARDS

The first footballers to feature on cigarette cards appeared in 1895. At first they were individual items in collections of general interest. The first complete series was a set of 60 cards issued by Wills in 1902. Many and varied were the football collections which boomed from the 1920's to the outbreak of war. But in 1940 they were banned because of the war effort and the subsequent shortage of paper which continued years after hostilities had ended. The four leading tobacco companies then agreed not to resume the manufacture of cards.

DISASTERS

The worst crowd disaster in the history of British football occurred on 15 April 1989 at Hillsborough, Sheffield when 94 Liverpool supporters were crushed to death and 170 injured following a surge of spectators at the FA Cup semi-final between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest. Another spectator subsequently died as a result of injuries sustained and the 96th after being in a coma for nearly four years. The victims were trapped against steel fencing at the front of the Leppings Lane terracing at Sheffield Wednesday's ground at the start of the game.

WARTIME FOOTBALL

Although the League programme was abandoned during both world wars, one full season was carried on in 1914-15 and regional leagues were operated to enable the game to be carried on. Not all the clubs continued during these periods and guest players were permitted to enable teams to field reasonably competitive sides. In the First World War, two regional groups were formed, Lancashire and Midlands with the exception of five southerly based clubs who joined with teams from the Southern League to play in a London Combination. The normal programme was resumed in 1919-20.

Regional football was more extensively organised in the 1939-40 season following the abandonment of the official programme in September 1939 after three matches had been played. Once again guest players were permitted, though the system was abused by many clubs. The various competitions were designed to reduce travel as much as possible. Among many fixture difficulties, a crisis emerged in 1941 when the London clubs decided to form their own tournament, the London League. Arsenal, Portsmouth, West Ham United, Aldershot, Tottenham Hotspur, Crystal Palace, Reading, Charlton Athletic, Brentford, Queens Park Rangers, Fulham, Brighton & Hove Albion, Chelsea, Millwall, Clapton Orient and Watford were expelled by the Football League!

The Football Association agreed to oversee the organisation and the problems were resolved before the start of the 1942-43 season. Though the war in Europe ended in May 1945, the 1945-46 season was treated as a transitional one, with a limit on the number of guests in any one match to six, later reduced to three.

WAR GOALS

The eternal problem of correctly identifying goalscorers was made doubly problamatical during the regional competitions organised during the two world wars. During the First World War, when there were four unofficial seasons, Horace Barnes of Manchester City scored a remarkable 73 goals in 73 matches, being fined on one occasion by Manchester magistrates for absenting himself from work at a munitions factory to play against Stockport County on 4 September 1915. He scored in a 3-1 win.

Ernie Simms of Luton Town went to Italy with the Army and was wounded. After recovering he played for Luton in the London Combination and scored 40 goals from 29 games in the 1916-17 season. Oddly enough the player who pipped him as the top scorer that season Wally Davis of Millwall, had himself suffered an ankle injury during service in Italy, which caused his eventual retirement from the game. He scored 73 goals in all London Combination games. In 1916-17 he hit 42 goals. Twice he attempted a comeback but he finally had to retire in January 1919.

Syd Puddefoot of West Ham, who worked exhaustive hours in the dangers of a munitions factory, hit 35 the following season including seven goals in one match against Crystal Palace and amassed 100 goals during the four seasons for the Hammers, others while guesting for other teams. Bob Thomson, who only had one eye, scored 38 goals for Chelsea in 1915-16, including seven against Luton.

In the Second World War, the three most prolific scorers were certainly Tommy Lawton, Jock Dodds and Albert Stubbins. Lawton was in the Army as a PTI. For Everton his own club and Aldershot as a guest player he achieved 244 League and Cup goals plus at least another 90 recorded in international and representative games. Dodds was with Blackpool and stationed nearby in the RAF for a time. He hit 254 goals most of them for Blackpool and others in international games for Scotland and representative matches. In 1941-42 he registered 77 goals in all games. Stubbins worked in the drawing office of a Tyneside shipyard and hit 230 for Newcastle United, though he had fewer opportunities to appear in representative matches.

FINES

The heaviest punishment handed by the Football Association was when Tottenham Hotspur were fined £600,000, deducted 12 points and banned from the FA Cup at the start of the 1994-95 season for financial irregularities involving loans to players. On appeal the points deficit was reduced to six, but the fine increased to £1.5m. In December 1994 the points penalty was annulled and the club was reinstated in the FA Cup.

FOOTBALL LITERATURE

The first football annual was Alcock's in 1870. One of the earliest programmes was a single sheet for the 1886 FA Cup final and there was even one printed for a friendly match between Queen's Park and The Wanderers in 1875.

KNIGHTS OF THE ROUND BALL

Stanley Matthews 1965, Alf Ramsey 1967, Matt Busby 1968, Bobby Charlton 1994, Tom Finney 1998 and Geoff Hurst 1998 have received knighthoods.

PENALTIES

The penalty kick was introduced by the Irish FA and accepted by the International Football Board in 1891. The first player to score from a penalty in the Football League was John Heath, Wolverhampton W v Accrington, 14 September 1891.

The highest number of penalties awarded in a Football League match is five in the Division 2 match between Crystal Palace v Brighton & HA on 27 March 1989. Palace won 2-1, but missed three penalties, while Brighton scored from their effort.

Manchester City had missed three penalties against Newcastle United in Division 1 on 27 January 1912 in a 1-1 draw.

The highest number of penalties converted in one season is 13 by Francis Lee for Manchester City in Division 1, 1971-72. For penalty saves, Paul Cooper of Ipswich Town stopped eight of the ten he faced in 1979-80. But Southend United missed seven successive penalties in 1991.

The penalty shoot-out was first used in the Watney Cup, when Manchester U beat Hull C 4-3 on penalties, semi-final 5 August 1970.

In 1991-92, penalties were introduced in the FA Cup after a replay and extra time, though they had been used earlier. It was in 1972 when the short-lived play-off for third place between the beaten semi-finalists was still in fashion. Birmingham beat Stoke 4-3 on penalties on 5 August. The League Cup used penalties instead of replays from 1997-98.

The highest recorded score in a penalty shoot-out in England was Aldershot's 11-10 win v Fulham after a 1-1 draw in the Freight Rover Trophy Southern quarter-final on 10 February 1987. Seven kicks were missed or saved. When Marlow beat Littlehampton 11-10 on penalties in an FA Cup first qualifying round match on 17 September 1997, the first 21 kicks were successful. The match ended when the Littlehampton goalkeeper missed with the 22nd kick at 10.45pm. However the world record is believed to be Argentinos Juniors 20, Racing Club 19 in 1988.

SUDDEN DEATH GOALS

A goal scored in extra time to decide the outcome of the match was introduced in the 1994-95 season for the Auto Windscreens Shield competition. The actual final was decided in that manner when Birmingham scored in the 103rd minute against Carlisle.

SUSPENSIONS

Billy Cook (Oldham Ath) was suspended for 12 months for refusing to leave the pitch after being sent off at Middlesbrough in a Division 1 match on 3 April 1915. The match was abandoned with 35 minutes remaining and the 4-1 score to Middlesbrough allowed to stand.

The previous day Manchester United's Enoch West had been involved in fixing the result of the United v Liverpool match. United won 2-0. He was suspended for 30 years until 1945 when he was 62 years old. Other players implicated in the scandal had their suspensions lifted in recognition of war service.

TESTIMONIALS

Believed to be the record benefit match proceeds was the £600,000 for Paul McGrath's testimonial at Landsdowne Road, Dublin on 17 May 1998, from a crowd of 39,000 who saw Jack Charlton's XI beat a Republic of Ireland XI 3-2.

THIRD DIVISION RIVALRY

Before the formation of the Fourth Division in 1958, there were representative matches held between the Northern and Southern sections of the Third Division.

16 March 1955 at Reading: South 2 North 0; 13 October 1955 at Accrington: North 3 South 3; 8 October 1956 at Coventry: South 2 North 1; 2 April 1957 at Stockport: North 2 South 1; 30 October 1957 at Selhurst Park: South 2 North 2; 18 March 1958 at Carlisle: North 0 South 1.

PROFESSIONALISM, PAY AND TRANSFERS

Before professionalism was legalised in 1885, several clubs were paying their players. In 1882 the Football Association ruled that any member of a club receiving remuneration above expenses and wages lost would be debarred from the game. Preston North End and Blackburn Rovers were among the first clubs to pay wages to players. Around 1883 Bolton Wanderers were paying their players 2s.6d win bonus and deducting the same for defeats! Stoke paid their first professionals the same, until it was discovered that one player was receiving 5s (25p). The others went on strike until guaranteed the same increase.

It is widely believed that the first professional footballer was James J. 'Reddie' Lang, a Scottish international who joined Sheffield Wednesday in October 1876 having been spotted playing for Glasgow at Sheffield earlier in the year. Though the Wednesday club were opposed to professionalism, they controversially allowed Walter Fearnehough, one of their committee members, to employ Lang in Fearnehough's knife-making works in Garden Street. His duties were apparently non-existent and he spent his day reading newspapers. Lang had lost the sight of his left eye in an 1869 accident at John Brown shipyard on Clydebank, but was able to keep the secret from anyone at Sheffield.

Once professionalism was officially recognised, payments to players varied and it was not until 1901 that a maximum wage rule was imposed at £4 a week. Subsequent increases brought the upper level to £20 in 1958. In 1947, a minimum wage was agreed for the first time, but the most significant change came about with the abolition of the maximum in 1961.

It is generally considered that Johnny Haynes of Fulham was the first player in England to be paid as much as £100 a week. By the late 1980s, it was not uncommon for leading First Division players to be paid as much as £100,000 a year and wage bills for clubs could easily top £1 million.

Ten years later and with the Premier League established and reaping the financial rewards of television coverage, the average salary of players in the top echelon was £150,000 to £200,000 a year, those in Division One between £50,000 and £60,000 while in Division Two it was £35,000 and Division Three £25,000. Of course, internationally-rated players were receiving much higher figures. In fact, in 1998 Business Age considered that leading players were receiving ten times that per annum. David Beckham of Manchester United was reported to be earning a basic salary of £1.35m, though the club denied the figure. With bonuses, signing-on-fees and sponsorship agreements his income was reckoned to be £8.1m. Dennis Bergkamp of Arsenal was placed even higher at £13.75m, while the world's top earner, the Brazilian international Ronaldo at Internazionale was reputedly on £20.5m.

Transfer fees have also escalated. There were early attempts to restrict them, but these met with much less success than wage controls. The reason for this was simple: the clubs benefited from a no-restriction system of buying and selling players. In 1899, the Football Association suggested to the Football League that there should be a transfer limit of £10. Nothing came of this, but in 1908 a larger figure of £350 was imposed, but lasted only four months. The first four-figure transfer came when Middlesbrough paid £1000 to Sunderland for Alf Common in February 1905. The present domestic record stands at £15m for Alan Shearer from Blackburn Rovers to Newcastle United in 1996.

In 1995 after five years of legal proceedings, Jean-Marc Bosman a Belgian player, won a ruling in the European Court of Justice to give out-of-contract players within the European community, the right to become free agents. It took the freedom of contract to its furthest degree and added a new milestone in the emancipation of the professional footballer. It did not prevent record fees being paid out for players, but did result in others being signed without the selling club being able to receive a penny.

The George Eastham case in 1963 had resulted in a declaration being made which said that the system of retaining a player after the expiration of his contract was not binding in law. However, this was overcome by the insertion of an option clause in the player's contract. The next move came in 1978 when the Football League agreed to freedom of contract for players, though the player's registration remained with the club for whom he last played, until such time as he signed for another.

TACTICS

Tactics can be all things to all people. Like beauty, they lie in the eyes of the beholder. But since it became normal around the 1860s for only 11 players to be used in a team, there have been trends brought about by circumstances, which cannot be refuted. And these almost without exception, have resulted in the number of midfield and defensive players increasing at the expense of those in attack.

Because tactics are invariably based on a known or expected response from the opposition, just as many matches are decided by either errors or individual brilliance as text book moves. The quality of the players themselves can overcome the strictures of an opposing system.

The late 1980s produced a degree of flexibility in tactics without any retreat from the premise that defence was the safest form of survival. The alternatives of a flat back four or employing a sweeper behind them, were supplemented with a sweeper behind and one in front, the forward player acting as a deep-lying midfield operator.

This inevitably reduced the midfield and forward options to just four players, leaving a striker isolated with three players in midfield in a 1-4-1-3-1 formation.

There has yet to be a satisfactory renomination of the actual positions on the field, since the 2-3-5 days. When lost for words, observers often refer to the 'inside-left channel' and 'on the wing'. In simple terms, there remain five attacking positions on the field, two wide, one central, two down the channels. If a team uses two strikers, there will always be one channel to be filled by an attacking midfield player.

In recent years the development of the wing-back has given the game a new position which actually means what it says. But it is not new. Alf Ramsey turned his successful 1966 World Cup team into 'wingless wonders', purely by discarding his wingers and making his full-backs attack on the flanks. Perhaps they were less adventurous than the species of 30 years later, but the concept remains the same.

There has been the Diamond formation with a sweeper behind two central defenders and full-backs operating in a definite wide midfield capacity. Two more central midfield players thus complete a virtual four-man midfield, while the attacking pattern can either be a forward who plays behind two strikers, or two forwards operating behind a pure target man.

But with the penchant for the wing-back, three central defenders have provided the backbone with five players in midfield and two up front in a 3-5-2 formation. Yet the trend has been reversed more recently with a return to the flat back four in a 4-4-2 system. The pyramid or arrow system 4-3-2-1 has also had some usage.

Through the years there have been a dozen major tactical progressions from which others have spawned.

There was the early dribbling game of organised football with seven and sometimes even as many as eight forwards used. When England met Scotland for the first official international in 1872, they lined up with a goalkeeper, one back known as a three-quarter-back, one half-back and eight forwards. The Scots employed a goalkeeper, two backs, two half-backs and six forwards. In practice, everyone except the goalkeeper was disposed to attack. And they called the Dutch concept of total football revolutionary in the 1970s! But there was no actual teamwork a century earlier. Players merely backed up their colleagues if they lost possession or overran the ball. Dribbling the ball became the first tactic and the teams with the better individuals invariably won. Yet, dribbling has become something of a lost art in the modern era.

Then came Scotland's successful withdrawal to a stronger two-man midfield plus two defenders and a passing game in the 1870s. It was the Scots who developed the art of passing the ball before being tackled, and they generally held the ascendancy over England in international fixtures. So successful was this ploy, that the English adopted the same tactics and imported many Scottish players.

The 2-3-5 formation of the 1880s and the start of a defensive drift. Defences had to be strengthened to combat the new system and several teams experimented with three half-backs, though still retaining one full-back. Cambridge University were one of the first to use a goalkeeper, two full-backs, three halves and five forwards around 1877. Wrexham used the same formula the following year when they beat Druids 1-0 in the Welsh Cup final. However, many other teams still persisted with six forwards and it was not until the middle 1880s that England first tried three half-backs against Scotland, who themselves followed suit in 1887.

It was Preston North End whose successful combination of the Scottish passing game with the stronger midfield area and defence led to a League and Cup double in 1889, when professionalism had been firmly established in England.

While the professionals were progressing, the amateurs looked to the Corinthians for inspiration and found it. They perfected the ability not only to pass, but to draw an opponent and put the ball into space for a colleague to run onto.

The next change which affected team play came many years later from the offside law. From 1867 a player could be offside if fewer than three opponents were nearer their own goalline when the ball was last played. This encouraged defenders to move nearer the halfway line and stoppages for offside became incessant.

It is generally accepted that the man behind the perfection of the offside trap was Bill McCracken, the Newcastle United and Ireland international full-back. But in 1925 the Scottish FA proposed that a player could not be offside if two instead of three opponents were nearer their goalline when the ball was played. The ruling was adopted and the effect on goalscoring was dramatic. In 1924-25 a total of 4,700 goals had been scored in the Football League alone; in the first season after the alteration, the total rose by a third to 6,373. In order to prevent defences being overrun, the middle of the three half-backs was withdrawn to line up with the two full-backs.

At the same time, there was a move to reinforce the midfield area now that one of the halves had virtually become a third full-back, so the two inside-forwards from the five attackers were withdrawn in front of the remaining half-backs. This developed as the WM formation in the 1930s.

The next significant tactical switch was developed by the Hungarians and Brazilians in the 1950s, but it should be stressed that variations on the WM formation had been in existence long before this time, although they perfected it. Bascially, the centre-forward was withdrawn into midfield, the two inside-forwards pushed up and were supported by wingers. Only one half-back remained, but there were now two central defenders to combat the twin strikers in a 4-2-4 formation.

From here the defensive trend has continued. The two-legged system of European cup games also influenced tactics and encouraged visiting teams to play defensively. It was epitomised by Italy's ultra defensive catenaccio system with a 'libero' (free back)or sweeper behind four defenders. This was followed by the 4-3-3 'wingless wonders' style made popular after England's 1966 World Cup success. Only by comparison with catenaccio was it an adventurous formation. There have been attempts to break away from the defensive stranglehold, notably the Dutch concept of total football in the 1970s; it featured all-out attack when in possession, all-out defence when the opposition had the ball.

Then came the 4-4-2 system with its heavily populated midfield area, but revived again more recently.

Other systems have included a reinforced midfield of five players with either three defenders and two forwards or four at the back and an isolated target man in a 4-5-1 system ... and who could forget Terry Venables' Christmas Tree!

Yet the most successful system of all is the one which is best suited to the quality of the players.

TALLEST, SHORTEST, HEAVIEST, LIGHTEST

Stockport County centre-forward Kevin Francis was listed at 6ft 7in in Rothmans Footall Yearbook in 1998-99 as was Luton Town goalkeeper Ian Feuer.

Fred Le May, a forward with Thames Association, Watford and Clapton Orient in the 1930s made Football League appearances for those three clubs despite being only 5ft tall.

In 1958-59, Lincoln City had a 6ft 3in centre-half called Ray Long and a 5ft 2in outside-left called Joe Short, who had a specially made kit.

William Henry Foulke, a one-cap England international goalkeeper for Alfreton, Blackwell Colliery, Sheffield United, Chelsea and Bradford City stood over 6ft 2in and weighed 21 stones in 1901. It was thought his weight had increased to nearly 25 stones towards the end of his career in 1907. Oddly enough at birth he was registered as 'Foulk' and on his death as 'Foulkes'. He played four games for Derbyshire CCC in 1900 and died from pneumonia, contracted on Blackpool beach where he tried to stop penalties at a penny a shot from the public.

Walter Hepworth, a Barnsley inside-right of the 1890s weighed around 7st 5lb. Le May himself only tipped the scales at 7st 10lb. Hepworth played for Barnsley in their Midland League days and when they entered the Football League. In 1898-99 he was the club's joint second highest scorer with nine goals.

WOMEN'S FOOTBALL

Preston was the stronghold of women's football in the 1890s. The famous Dick, Kerr's XI was formed there in 1894. Through a popular misconception it has frequently been referred to as Dick Kerr's. The company was actually formed by W.B.Dick and John Kerr. Crowds of 10,000 were not uncommon and such was the increasing popularity of the ladies game that the Football Association banned clubs from staging such matches on their grounds. On Boxing Day 1920 with 10,000 locked out, a crowd of 53,000 at Goodison Park, saw Dick, Kerr's beat St Helends Ladies 4-0. It was not until December 1969 that the FA decided to recognise women's football and in November 1971 the Women's Football Association was officially recognised by the FA. The first official international in Britain was played at Greenock on 18 November 1972, England beating Scotland 3-2.

REFEREES

Referees were first mentioned in the rules pertaining to Cheltenham College in 1867. Previously two umpires officiated. Indeed the referee was to be a third official on hand to arbitrate on issues the umpires could not decide upon themselves. However there was no real connection with soccer as Cheltenham was a rugby stronghold. In fact it was not until 1871 that the FA Challenge Cup rules mentioned a referee, though the principle remained the same; he was in charge of the umpires, who were first mentioned in the actual laws in 1874. Referees appeared there for the first time in 1880. The position of umpire was discontinued from 1891 when linesmen took over and the referee moved from a role behind the touchline, to one on the field. Alas, the whistle did not become part of a referee's equipment until 1878, used for the first time in a match between Nottingham Forest and Sheffield Norfolk. Linesmen became assistant referees in 1996.

Thought to be one of the rare instances of a referee being sent off by a player, was the occasion of the Sheffield v Glasgow representative match at Hampden Park on 22 September 1930. Sheffield were playing in white shirts and black shorts. Referee Thomson had a white shirt and no jacket. Sheffield's captain Jimmy Seed of Sheffield Wednesday found he was passing the ball to the referee and asked him to put on a jacket. The official did so.

TWO REFEREES

The idea of two referees was given lengthy consideration for the first time in 1935. It was proposed that each half of the pitch would be controlled by one official. But at the AGM of the Football League it was rejected by 31 votes to 18, even though it was thought that at least eight of the nine members of the League Management Committee were in favour. The chief instigator was the Everton chairman W.C. Cuff, who wanted the experiment to be carried out in all First and Second Division games in 1935-36.

The dual control had been tested in an amateur international trial game at Chester on 5 January 1935. It was experimented with further at the full international trial match, England v The Rest at West Bromwich on 27 March 1935. The teams on that occasion were:

England: Sagar (Everton); Male, Hapgood (both Arsenal), Britton (Everton), Barker (Derby Co), Bray (Manchester C), Geldard (Everton), Carter (Sunderland), Drake (Arsenal), Westwood (Bolton W), Bastin (Arsenal).
The Rest: Swift (Manchester C); Channell (Tottenham H), Barkas (Manchester C), Gardner (Aston Villa), Millership (Sheffield W), Alsford (Tottenham H), Crooks (Derby Co), Eastham (Bolton W), Gurney (Sunderland), Sandford (WBA), Brook (Manchester C).

In a match described as clever and even, Ted Drake gave England the lead following Geldard's centre. Bob Gurney equalised with a fine effort only for Drake to restore England's lead following good work by Ray Westwood. In the second half Eddie Hapgood was penalized for handling and Eric Brook converted from the spot. Geldard, Millership and Barkas were outstanding in the 2-2 draw. The two officials in control were Dr. A.W. Barton of Repton College from the Amateur Football Alliance and E. Wood (Sheffield).

Reports were favourable and prompted a further trial, again at The Hawthorns on 8 May. This time a Football League XI met the West Bromwich Albion team and the two linesmen were dispensed with. The referees were W.P. Harper (Stourbridge) and E. Pinckston (Birmingham). The conclusions based on the evidence of these two officials was that it was possible to control the match more efficiently by keeping up with play, give more accurate offside decisions and be able to have a clearer view of the ball in the other official's half.

The two referees did not interfere with each other's decision making, unless a controversial moment arose, in which instance the senior referee would have the final say. They had the option of using linesmen in the second half of the match but declined. However, subsequently they reported it would help the overall control if linesmen were employed, but solely to indicate throw-ins.

Such was the excitement, the Football League XI team won 9-6, the two officials were probably busy taking note of the scores. Even so, the match was considered to be of a high standard, keenly contested and an excellent example of how the game should be played. It is also interesting to note that the views of referee Pinckston were such that he viewed the experiment with a perfectly open mind, being neither prejudiced or biased one way or the other. Yet the proposal came forward again in 1937 at the AGM of the Football Association, when it was suggested that the system be given a trial in practice matches before the start of the new season and then experimented with in certain League games. But again the proposal was defeated.

This was not the end of the affair. From time to time the idea has been reviewed, especially in the light of disciplinary problems caused by the speed at which the modern game is played. Indeed, in recent years, UEFA has called for experiments to the same end.

RE-ELECTION

The notion that certain clubs should have to seek re-election was one of the earliest rules of the Football League, but though this referred to the bottom four clubs in each division, it was only when a Second Division was instituted in 1892-93 that the rule applied just to those in the lower division. In 1896 it was reduced to the bottom three teams and from 1909, the last two in the table. The creation of the Third Division in 1920 maintained the need for the bottom two clubs to apply for re-election and the following year when a Northern Section of the same division was formed, it became two clubs each from North and South, thus reverting to the original idea at least of four clubs seeking to be re-elected. With the formation of the Fourth Division in 1958, it again required the lowest four finishing clubs to apply.

The creation of the pyramid system in non-league football put pressure on the Football League to allow the top team outside the competition to be given the opportunity of playing in it on playing ability rather than votes, providing their ground and finances passed the required test for inclusion. Thus at the end of the 1986-87 season, re-election was scrapped and Lincoln City became the first club to lose its Football League status and be replaced by Scarborough from the GM Vauxhall Conference.

INJURIES

For a body-contact sport, football has a record of comparatively few fatalities and serious injuries, given the extent of the game over the world in more than a century of competitive matches.

Improved medical knowledge, treatment and surgical skills have wiped away many of the threats to life that injuries produced in the past.

Sam Wynne was probably the first player to die during a first-class fixture. The Bury full-back collapsed when taking a free-kick against Sheffield United at Bramall Lane on 30 April 1927. It was later discovered he had died from pneumonia. Others died as a result of injuries sustained in matches.

Jimmy Dunlop, playing for St Mirren against Abercorn on 1 January 1892, fell and cut his knee on a piece of glass, contracted tetanus and died 10 days afterwards. In August 1902, a cut on the leg, which turned septic caused the death a week later of Di Jones during a Manchester City practice match.

An accidental kick in the stomach caused the death of William Walker of Leith Athletic playing against Vale of Leven on 12 January 1907. In a friendly match, Jimmy Main of Hibernian suffered internal injuries against Partick Thistle on Christmas Day 1909 and died four days later.

Bob Benson had not played for a year when he went to watch Arsenal play Reading on 19 February 1916. He had been heavily engaged working on war munitions, but volunteered to play as Arsenal were a player short. Feeling unwell, he left the field only to die in the dressing-room from a burst blood vessel.

Josiah Williamson, the Dumbarton goalkeeper, died from injuries received v Rangers on 12 November 1921. Two years later on 5 November, Tom Butler a full-back with Port Vale, broke his arm against Clapton Orient. Septic poisoning set in and he died six days afterwards.

John Thomson, Celtic's goalkeeper, died seven hours after fracturing his skull in a collision with Sam English of Rangers during a Division 1 match on 5 September 1931, while Sam Raleigh, the Gillingham centre-forward died shortly after suffering concussion in the game with Brighton & Hove Albion on 1 December 1934.

Jim Thorpe, the Sunderland goalkeeper, died a few days after a game against Chelsea on 1 February 1936. His death was due to diabetes, although a coroner's jury found that the illness had been accelerated by the game. Diabetes is no longer a hazard; Gary Mabbutt of Tottenham Hotspur and England has played without undue difficulty despite suffering from the disability.

David Longhurst, playing for York City v Lincoln City on 8 September 1990, collapsed and died after being carried off just before half-time. He had been suffering from a rare heart condition.

Two referees who died while officiating in Football League games were Roy Harper in 1969 and Jim Finn 1972.

Serious injuries which caused the end of a player's career included Derek Dooley's misfortune to fracture a leg playing for Sheffield Wednesday v Preston North End on 14 February 1953. Gangrene quickley set in and the limb had to be amputated.

Ledger Ritson, the Leyton Orient full-back fractured a leg in a game against Northampton Town on 11 September 1948. Despite recovering, it was subsequently discovered that a bone had become diseased and the limb was amputated.

In recent years there has been an increase in players seeking court action as a result of injuries suffered at the hands of an opponent.

Artifical turf

In 1981 Queens Park Rangers became the first club to instal an artificial surface. Luton Town 1985, Oldham Athletic and Preston North End 1986 followed. QPR and Luton returned to grass pitches in 1988 and Oldham in 1991, when artificial pitches were banned in the First Division. Preston did so in 1994. Stirling Albion had been the first Scottish club to have an artificial pitch in 1987.

Awards

One of the longest-standing is the Football Writers' Association award for the Footballer of the Year, which has been held since 1947-48. The Professional Footballers Association instituted their own awards for Player of the Year, Young Player and a Merit Award from 1974. In Scotland the FWA began their Player of the Year in 1965, the Scottish PFA in 1978. On a wider scale, the magazine France Football has held the European Footballer of the Year annually since 1956, while FIFA's World Player was started in 1991. FIFA have also made a Fairplay Award since 1987.

Broadcasting and Television

The first radio broadcast was Arsenal v Sheffield United, Division 1, 22 January 1927. The first cup-tie followed the next week between Corinthians and Newcastle United. The first Cup Final was Cardiff City v Arsenal, 23 April 1927.

In Scotland the first BBC broadcast live was Rangers v St Mirren, Divison 1 12 February 1927.

The first match for which any parts were shown either live or in recorded form was a practice match at Highbury on Thursday 16 September 1937. At the time the BBC studios and transmitter were situated at nearby Alexandra Palace. On 29 August 1936, there had been a televised film taken by the BBC of Arsenal's game with Everton. However, the first live transmission came from Germany three months later.

After the war the first BBC televised game was Barnet v Tooting & Mitcham, 19 October 1946.

The first Cup Final in which part of the game was covered by television cameras was Sunderland v Preston 1937, the first in its entirety: Charlton v Burnley, 26 April 1947, when there was still a near full Football League fixture list on the same day. The first FA Cup tie other than the final was Charlton v Blackburn, 5th round, 8 February 1947.

In Scotland, Queen's Park were the first Scottish club to be televised, in a friendly v Walthamstow Avenue in February 1950. The first half of the Clyde v Aberdeen, Division 1 match on 3 September 1955 was also covered. The first Scottish Cup Final televised was Celtic v Clyde, 23 April 1955.

On 10 September 1960, the first Football League match was televised between Blackpool v Bolton, ITV. That particular scheme folded.

In August 1964 BBC2 screened edited highlights of one League game per week two hours after the match. Liverpool v Arsenal, 22 August was the first. Now football can feature every day of the week on satellite TV.

Corners

Sheffield United were awarded 28 corners in the Division 2 match with West Ham United on 14 October 1989. West Ham had one corner, but won the match 2-1. However, when Newcastle drew 0-0 with Portsmouth in Division I on 5 December 1931, not one corner was awarded in the entire match.

Floodlights
The first floodlit matches took place in 1878. On 14 October at Bramall Lane, Sheffield. Electric power was generated by two portable engines, the lamps were placed in the corners on 30 ft high wooden towers. The teams were drawn from the local Sheffield Association. At Lower Aston, Birmingham on 28 October, 12 electric lights were deployed around the pitch for the Birmingham v Nottingham Forest game. On 4 November at Kennington Oval, Wanderers met Clapham Rovers in a further experiment.

Football Trust
Founded in 1975 following an initiative of the Pools companies Littlewoods, Vernons and Zetters, it provides financial support for the game at every level. The Trust was also given a lead role in overseeing the recommendations of Lord Justice Taylor's final report into the Hillsborough Stadium disaster. Grants exceeding £140 million have been made to major ground redevelopment projects in Britain. The FA Premier League will contribute £20 million up to 2001 during which time via the Trust and the Sports Council Lottery Fund, grants of £55 million will be made for essential work at football grounds throughout England. In addition the Football Association will provide £10 million during the same period.

Four headed goals
Jimmy Glazzard scored four headed goals, each one from centres by Vic Metcalfe in an 8-2 win over Everton on 7 April 1953. Eddie Reynolds headed all four of Wimbledon's goals in the 4-2 win against Sutton United in the 1963 FA Amateur Cup final.

Greatest haul

Inter-League
The Football League played Inter-League matches from 1892 to 1976 on a fairly regular basis until the latter years and since then only spasmodically. The first fixture was on 11 April 1892 at Pike's Lane, Bolton. The Football League drew 2-2 with the Scottish League. However there had been a match between the Football League and the Football Alliance on 20 April 1891, ending in a 1-1 draw. The latter competition became the Second Division of the Football League. There were subsequent fixtures with the Irish League from 1894 and League of Ireland from 1947. Before the First World War, the Southern League also competed in Inter-League matches.

International Football Association Board
In 1882 the Football Association proposed that the four home countries should agree on the Laws of the Game. The Scottish FA preferred to adhere to their own rules at the time and there seemed a definite danger of international matches between Scotland and England being discontinued, until the Scots relented.

The meeting was held in Manchester on 6 December 1882, attended by two representatives each from the four associations of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. A uniform code of rules was agreed upon and set up. They agreed to an annual gathering and in June 1886 formed the International Football Association Board. Each of the four home countries has four representatives and in 1913 FIFA was given recognition on the Board and has four representatives itself. In 1950 the Board had decided that referees for international matches should be drawn from neutral countries rather than those involved in the specific game in question.

On the table

The earliest known table football game was one manufactured in Preston in 1884. It featured painted lead figures on bases, rather in the style of soldiers, who were moved around on a draught-board surface. In 1946 P. Adolf invented Subbuteo, the longest serving and most popular game of its kind. However, a game of no mean skill using coins and propelling them with a comb on a wooden table, known as 'penny and halfpenny football', survived even this sophisticated pastime.

Players Union

After several attempts to form a union before the turn of the century, the present body was set up at a meeting held on 2 December 1907 and registered as a trade union on 10 March 1908. It was then known as the Football Players' and Trainers' Union. From 1958 it has been known as the Professional Footballers' Association.

Pools

Frederick Jervis, a Birmingham bookmaker, launched the first football coupon in the 1920s.

Pools panel

First introduced in January 1963 during the harsh winter of that year. At first 30 coupon matches had to be postponed for the panel to operate; in later seasons it was reduced to ten and from 1988-89 it required just one match called off. The panel meets every weekend from October to April. Their most active days: 17 January 1987 and 9 February 1991 with 48 postponed matches on the coupon.

Postponements

Worst day: 3 February 1940; only one of 56 wartime regional matches survived snow, ice and fog: Plymouth Argyle 10, Bristol City 3.

Next worst: 9 February 1963; 57 English and Scottish League matches frozen off. Only seven English games survived.

Just as bad: 12 January and 2 February 1963 when only four of 44 Football League games were played. 1 January 1979, 43 of 46. 17 January 1987 when 37 of 45 Football League games were called off and only two Scottish League games survived. 8/9 February 1991: 4 of 44 Football League; 11 Scottish called off. 27 January 1996 when 44 League and cup matches in England and Scotland were postponed, ten surviving.

Worst single match

Inverness Thistle v Falkirk 1978-79 postponed 29 times because of snow and ice. Originally fixed for 6 January it was played on 22 February. Falkirk won 4-0.

Royalty

First reigning monarch to attend the Cup Final was King George V on the occasion of the Burnley v Liverpool match at the Crystal Palace on 25 April 1914. He was also in attendance at the Division I match between Manchester City and Liverpool at Hyde Road on 27 March 1920.

During the Restoration, King Charles II is said to have approved of football and actually attended a match between his own palace servants and those of the Duke of Albemarle.

Ships, trains and planes

All at sea

Raith Rovers can claim to be one of few clubs who have been shipwrecked. On 23 July 1920, the 'Highland Loch' en route to the Canary Islands was grounded on a sandbank near Corruedo in north-west Spain, after a violent storm. All hands survived and were taken by lifeboat to Vigo. Their vessel was later refloated. Little worse for the ordeal, Raith on to win five games.

However, Notts County was sunk in an Icelandic Harbour in the late 1960s. It was one of a number of Grimsby trawlers. There were ten in the 1930s and 13 three decades later, nearly all named after League clubs: Aldershot, Arsenal, Barnsley, Blackburn Rovers, Carlisle United, Crystal Palace, Everton, Grimsby Town, Huddersfield Town, Hull City, Nottingham Forest (abbreviated to Notts Forest!), Notts County and Real Madrid. Aldershot and Everton both featured prominently in the 1973 Icelandic fishing dispute.

Soccer specials

When West Bromwich Albion visited Luton Town for an FA Cup first round tie on 30 January 1897, Tom Perry missed the train. A special was chartered consisting of an engine and one coach at the cost of £50. Perry and the club secretary Frank Heaven were its only passengers. Albion won 1-0.

In the 1959-60 season, Tottenham Hotspur drew 2-2 away to Crewe Alexandra in a fourth round FA Cup tie. But they won the replay 13-2. After the match the Crewe team left Euston station from Platform 13 and arrived at Crewe on Platform 2.

The London and North-Eastern Railway introduced a batch of 25 locomotives bearing the names and colours of Football League clubs on them, for express passenger work in East Anglia during 1936-37. The engines were scrapped between 1958-60.

* name changed to The Essex Regiment.

\+ originally named Rendelsham Hall but the nameplates were incorrectly spelled and in 1938 the Norwich City nameplates were put on it as 2859 had had a name change of its own to East Anglian in 1937.

= originally named Manchester City and later City of London.

Single-colour panels were usually edged with white lining, though Nottingham Forest, Tottenham Hotspur, Manchester City and West Ham United (post-war), had blue linings. Where two or three colours appeared on the panel, they were arranged in stripes with a black edging (red in the case of Grimsby Town). The width and number of stripes varied considerably, whilst the stripes themselves could be vertical or horizontal. There were even variations over the years in the interpretation of any one arrangement – for example, reflecting the change of shirt design, Doncaster Rovers had horizontal stripes pre-war, vertical stripes post-war, all-red panels by 1958 and finally vertical stripes again when restored after the engine was withdrawn from service and the nameplate handed for presentation, as were many others to the clubs concerned.

When No.2854 Sunderland was needed for working a cup final special in 1937 (the year Sunderland won the cup), it was under general repair at Gorton from 10 April to 15 May (the final being on 1 May that year). So on 17 April, No.2851 Derby County, went to Gorton to acquire 2854's number and nameplates. Its own number and nameplates were replaced during another short visit to Gorton from 9 to 13 May. It should also be mentioned that there is in existence an official photograph taken at Darlington showing 2849 when named Darlington. This was taken for works photographic purposes only, and is doubly confusing in that this engine was originally allotted the name Derby County! Clearly the first instances of engines on temporary transfer.

Come fly with me

Thought to be the first footballer to be specially flown to a match in this country was Vivian Gibbins, an amateur with Bristol Rovers and a schoolmaster in London. On 7 September 1932 the club had an injury crisis and arranged for a charter flight to bring him from Romford aerodrome to Filton. He arrived within half-an-hour of the 6.15 pm kick-off time and assisted in a 3-1 win.

An aeroplane was chartered to fly Bill Slater, a member of the staff at Birmingham University and a part-time professional with Wolverhampton Wanderers in the 1950s, to an evening match at Sheffield. The Auster pilot was unable to locate the landing strip and came down unheralded at RAF Worksop, surrounded by firetenders, ambulances and angry servicemen. And when Wolves kicked off that evening, Slater was still hitch-hiking to the ground.

On 9 October 1961 Gillingham were on the way to play Barrow in a Division Four fixture. Their party missed the train and they had to charter a plane. They arrived late and were losing 7-0 15 minutes from time when bad light caused the game to be abandoned. The Football League ordered the result to stand.

Shirt numbering

Numbers were made compulsory by the Football League in 1939, by 24 votes to 20. Previously there had been several isolated experiments. At the start of the 1928-29 season, Arsenal wore numbers against Sheffield Wednesday at Hillsborough and Chelsea did so at home to Swansea Town. On 29 April 1933 players in the Cup Final were numbered for the first time, but from 1 to 22. A week later on 6 May 1933 in a Division I match at Wolverhampton, Everton wore numbers. That same year Tottenham Hotspur proposed that players should be numbered in Football League games, but it was defeated at the AGM.

However, at a meeting of the Football Association held at Scarborough in 1938, it was decided to number players other than the goalkeeper in the FA Cup final, semi-finals, international matches, international trial and the FA Charity Shield. New Zealand's Brig-Gen. W.R.N. Maddox put forward the resolution that the proposal would result in the numbering of players from 1 to 10!

Squad numbers and names were introduced by the FA Premier League at the start of the 1993-94 season, having been used for the first time in both FA Cup and League Cup finals the previous season.

Shortest game

Ten and a half minutes; Sheffield Wednesday v Aston Villa 13 March 1899. The original Division 1 fixture on 26 November 1898 had been abandoned through bad light after 79 and a half minutes with Wednesday leading 3-1. The Football League ruled that it had to be completed, Wednesday adding a further goal to win 4-1. Understandably there were several changes from the first game. Just one appearance was counted for those who either played in two or only one game.

Sponsorship

Canon became the first sponsors of the Football League from 1983 to 1986. Today newspaper followed briefly before Barclays Bank took over in 1987. Since then, Endsleigh Insurance 1993-96 and Nationwide Building Society 1996-99 have followed. The League Cup has been sponsored as the Milk Cup, Littlewoods Cup, Rumbelows Cup, Coca-Cola Cup and from 1998 as the Worthington Cup. Carling's sponsorship of the FA Premier League began in 1993 and carries on to 2001. The FA Cup was first sponsored by Littlewoods Pools in 1994. In 1998 it became The AXA sponsored FA Cup.

Sunday service

Ron Greenwood, England manager from 1977-82, had his first connection with football as a ball boy for two church teams, one Wesleyan the other C of E. It was in a Sunday League, but they played on Saturdays. During the Second World War, despite factories working a six-day week, football was officially banned on Sundays. Denis Howell later to become a Football League referee, found a way round this by setting up the Birmingham Monday League, Sunday Section.

Time out

On 5 September 1992 Wimbledon's John Fashanu scored in the 81st minute v Arsenal. At the same moment his brother Justin was being sent off playing for Torquay United v Cardiff City.

Watering pitches

Watering the pitch was officially recognised and regulated in the Football League from 1939-40.

Youth football

The FA Youth Challenge Cup was inaugurated in 1953-54 for club sides. The FA County Youth Challenge Cup began in 1944-45 for county FA's.

NOTES ON THE LAWS OF THE GAME

Modifications

Subject to the agreement of the national association concerned and provided the principles of these Laws are maintained, the Laws may be modified in their application for matches for players of under 16 years of age, for women footballers and for veteran footballers (over 35 years).

Any or all of the following modifications are permissible:

- size of the field of play
- size, weight and material of the ball
- width between the goalposts and height of the crossbar from the ground
- the duration of the periods of play
- number of substitutions.

Further modifications are only allowed with the consent of the International Football Association Board.

Male and Female

References to the male gender in the Laws of the Game in respect of referees, assistant referees, players and officials are for simplification and apply to both males and females.

KEY

Throughout the Laws of the Game the following symbols are used:

* Unless covered by the Special Circumstances listed in Law 8 – The Start and Restart of Play

| Single line indicates new Law changes

|| Double line indicates former International F.A. Board Decisions which are now included in the Laws

LAW 1 – THE FIELD OF PLAY

Dimensions

The field of play must be rectangular. The length of the touch line must be greater than the length of the goal line.

Length: minimum 90 m (100 yds)
maximum 120 m (130 yds)

Width: minimum 45 m (50 yds)
maximum 90 m (100 yds)

International Matches

Length: minimum 100 m (110 yds)
maximum 110 m (120 yds)

Width: minimum 64 m (70 yds)
maximum 75 m (80 yds)

Field Markings

The field of play is marked with lines. These lines belong to the areas of which they are boundaries.

The two longer boundary lines are called touch lines. The two shorter lines are called goal lines.

All lines are not more than 12 cm (5 ins) wide.

The field of play is divided into two halves by a halfway line.

The centre mark is indicated at the midpoint of the halfway line. A circle with a radius of 9.15 m (10 yds) is marked around it.

The Goal Area

A goal area is defined at each end of the field as follows:

Two lines are drawn at right angles to the goal line, 5.5 m (6 yds) from the inside of each goalpost. These lines extend into the field of play for a distance of 5.5 m (6 yds) and are joined by a line drawn parallel with the goal line. The area bounded by these lines and the goal line is the goal area.

The Penalty Area

A penalty area is defined at each end of the field as follows:

Two lines are drawn at right angles to the goal line, 16.5 m (18 yds) from the inside of each goalpost. These lines extend into the field of play for a distance of 16.5 m (18 yds) and are joined by a line drawn parallel with the goal line. The area bounded by these lines and the goal line is the penalty area.

Within each penalty area a penalty mark is made 11 m (12 yds) from the midpoint between the goalposts and equidistant to them. An arc of a circle with a radius of 9.15 m (10 yds) from each penalty mark is drawn outside the penalty area.

Flagposts

A flagpost, not less than 1.5 m (5 ft) high, with a non-pointed top and a flag is placed at each corner.

Flagposts may also be placed at each end of the halfway line, not less than 1 m (1 yd) outside the touch line.

The Corner Arc

A quarter circle with a radius of 1 m (1 yd) from each corner flagpost is drawn inside the field of play.

Goals

Goals must be placed on the centre of each goal line.

They consist of two upright posts equidistant from the corner flagposts and joined at the top by a horizontal crossbar.

The distance between the posts is 7.32 m (8 yds) and the distance from the lower edge of the crossbar to the ground is 2.44 m (8 ft).

Both goalposts and the crossbar have the same width and depth which do not exceed 12 cm (5 ins). The goal lines are the same width as that of the goalposts and the crossbar. Nets may be attached to the goals and the ground behind the goal, provided that they are properly supported and do not interfere with the goalkeeper.

The goalposts and crossbars must be white.

Safety

Goals must be anchored securely to the ground. Portable goals may only be used if they satisfy this requirement.

IMPERIAL MEASUREMENTS

Decisions of the International F.A. Board

• Decision 1

If the crossbar becomes displaced or broken, play is stopped until it has been repaired or replaced in position. If a repair is not possible, the match is abandoned. The use of a rope to replace the crossbar is not permitted. If the crossbar can be repaired, the match is restarted with a dropped ball at the place where the ball was located when play was stopped.*

• Decision 2

Goalposts and crossbars must be made of wood, metal or other approved material. Their shape may be square, rectangular, round or elliptical and they must not be dangerous to players.

• Decision 3

No kind of commercial advertising, whether real or virtual, is permitted on the field of play and field equipment (including the goal nets and the areas they enclose) from the time the teams enter the field of play until they have left it at half-time and from the time the teams re-enter the field of play until the end of the match. In particular, no advertising material of any kind may be displayed on goals, nets, flagposts or their flags. No extraneous equipment (cameras, microphones, etc.) may be attached to these items.

• Decision 4

The reproduction, whether real or virtual, of representative logos or emblems of FIFA, confederations, national associations, leagues, clubs or other bodies, is forbidden on the field of play and field equipment (including the goal nets and the areas they enclose) during playing time, as described in Decision 3.

• Decision 5

A mark may be made off the field of play, 9.15 metres (10 yds) from the corner arc and at right angles to the goal lines to ensure that this distance is observed when a corner kick is being taken.

LAW 2 – THE BALL

Qualities and Measurements

The ball is:

- spherical
- made of leather or other suitable material
- of a circumference of not more than 70 cm (28 ins) and not less than 68 cm (27 ins)

- not more than 450 g (16 oz) in weight and not less than 410 g (14 oz) at the start of the match
- of a pressure equal to 0.6 — 1.1 atmosphere (600 — 1100 g/cm²) at sea level (8.5 lbs/sq in 15.6 lbs/sq in).

Replacement of a Defective Ball

If the ball bursts or becomes defective during the course of a match:

- the match is stopped
- *the match is restarted by dropping the replacement ball at the place where the first ball became defective

If the ball bursts or becomes defective whilst not in play at a kick-off, goal kick, corner kick, free kick, penalty kick or throw-in:

- the match is restarted accordingly.

The ball may not be changed during the match without the authority of the referee.

Decisions of the International F.A. Board

• Decision 1

In competition matches, only footballs which meet the minimum technical requirements stipulated in Law 2 are permitted for use.

In FIFA competition matches, and in competition matches organised under the auspices of the confederations, acceptance of a football for use is conditional upon the football bearing one of the following three designations:

the official "FIFA APPROVED" logo,
or
the official "FIFA INSPECTED" logo,
or
the reference "INTERNATIONAL MATCHBALL STANDARD"

Such a designation on a football indicates that it has been tested officially and found to be in compliance with specific technical requirements, different for each category and additional to the minimum specifications stipulated in Law 2. The list of the additional requirements specific to each of the respective categories must be approved by the International F.A. Board. The institutes conducting the tests are subject to the approval of FIFA.

National association competitions may require the use of balls bearing any one of these three designations.

In all other matches the ball used must satisfy the requirements of Law 2.

Decision 2

In FIFA competition matches and in competition matches organised under the auspices of the confederations and national associations, no kind of commercial advertising on the ball is permitted, except for the emblem of the competition, the competition organiser and the authorised trademark of the manufacturer. The competition regulations may restrict the size and number of such markings.

LAW 3 – THE NUMBER OF PLAYERS

Players

A match is played by two teams, each consisting of not more than eleven players, one of whom is the goalkeeper. A match may not start if either team consists of fewer than seven players.

Official Competitions

Up to a maximum of three substitutes may be used in any match played in an official competition organised under the auspices of FIFA, the confederations or the national associations.

The rules of the competition must state how many substitutes may be nominated, from three up to a maximum of seven.

Other Matches

In other matches, up to five substitutes may be used, provided that:

- the teams concerned reach agreement on a maximum number
- the referee is informed before the match.

If the referee is not informed, or if no agreement is reached before the start of the match, no more than three substitutes are allowed.

All Matches

In all matches the names of the substitutes must be given to the referee prior to the start of the match. Substitutes not so named may not take part in the match.

Substitution Procedure

To replace a player by a substitute, the following conditions must be observed:

- the referee is informed before any proposed substitution is made
- a substitute only enters the field of play after the player being replaced has left and after receiving a signal from the referee
- a substitute only enters the field of play at the halfway line and during a stoppage in the match.
- a substitution is completed when a substitute enters the field of play
- from that moment, the substitute becomes a player and the player he has replaced ceases to be a player
- a player who has been replaced takes no further part in the match
- all substitutes are subject to the authority and jurisdiction of the referee, whether called upon to play or not.

Changing the Goalkeeper

Any of the other players may change places with the goalkeeper, provided that:

- the referee is informed before the change is made
- the change is made during a stoppage in the match.

Infringements/Sanctions

If a substitute enters the field of play without the referee's permission:

- play is stopped
- the substitute is cautioned, shown the yellow card and required to leave the field of play
- *play is restarted with a dropped ball at the place it was located when play was stopped.

If a player changes places with the goalkeeper without the referee's permission before the change is made:

- play continues
- the players concerned are cautioned and shown the yellow card when the ball is next out of play.

For any other infringements of this Law:

- the players concerned are cautioned and shown the yellow card when the ball is next out of play.

For any other infringements of this Law:

- the players concerned are cautioned and shown the yellow card.

Restart of Play
If play is stopped by the referee to administer a caution:

- the match is restarted by an indirect free kick, to be taken by a player of the opposing team from the place where the ball was located when play was stopped.*

Players and Substitutes Sent Off
A player who has been sent off before the kick-off may be replaced only by one of the named substitutes.

A named substitute who has been sent off, either before the kick-off or after play has started, may not be replaced.

Decisions of the International F.A. Board

• Decision 1
Subject to the overriding conditions of Law 3, the minimum number of players in a team is left to the discretion of national associations. The Board is of the opinion, however, that a match should not continue if there are fewer than seven players in either team.

• Decision 2
The coach may convey tactical instructions to the players during the match. He and the other officials must remain within the confines of the technical area, where such an area is provided, and they must behave in a responsible manner.

• Procedure for injured players to leave the field of play
The Board reiterated that if an injured player is able to walk off the field of play, he should be encouraged to do so, especially if close to the boundary lines (it is therefore unnecessary to carry him off the field of play on a stretcher).

The Board also confirmed that, if the ball is out of play when the player returns to the field of play, an injured player can enter the field from any point on the boundary line. If the ball is in play, the player may only re-enter the field of play from a touch line. In any case, he must await the referee's signal.

LAW 4 – THE PLAYERS' EQUIPMENT

Safety
A player must not use equipment or wear anything which is dangerous to himself or another player (including any kind of jewellery).

Basic Equipment
The basic compulsory equipment of a player is:

- a jersey or shirt
- shorts – if thermal undershorts are worn, they are of the same main colour as the shorts
- stockings
- shinguards
- footwear.

Shinguards
- are covered entirely by the stockings
- are made of a suitable material (rubber, plastic, or similar substances)
- provide a reasonable degree of protection.

Goalkeepers
- each goalkeeper wears colours which distinguish him from the other players, the referee and the assistant referees.

Infringements/Sanctions

For any infringement of this Law:
- play need not be stopped
- the player at fault is instructed by the referee to leave the field of play to correct his equipment
- the player leaves the field of play when the ball next ceases to be in play, unless he has already corrected his equipment
- any player required to leave the field of play to correct his equipment does not re-enter without the referee's permission
- the referee checks that the player's equipment is correct before allowing him to re-enter the field of play
- the player is only allowed to re-enter the field of play when the ball is out of play.

A player who has been required to leave the field of play because of an infringement of this Law and who enters (or re-enters) the field of play without the referee's permission is cautioned and shown the yellow card.

Restart of Play
If play is stopped by the referee to administer a caution:

- the match is restarted by an indirect free kick taken by a player of the opposing side, from the place where the ball was located when the referee stopped the match.*

LAW 5 – THE REFEREE

The Authority of the Referee
Each match is controlled by a referee who has full authority to enforce the Laws of the Game in connection with the match to which he has been appointed.

Powers and Duties

The Referee:
- enforces the Laws of the Game
- controls the match in co-operation with the assistant referees and, where applicable, with the fourth official
- ensures that the ball meets the requirements of Law 2
- ensures that the players' equipment meets the requirements of Law 4
- acts as timekeeper and keeps a record of the match
- stops, suspends or terminates the match, at his discretion, for any infringements of the Laws
- stops, suspends or terminates the match because of outside interference of any kind
- stops the match if, in his opinion, a player is seriously injured and ensures that he is removed from the field of play
- allows play to continue until the ball is out of play if a player is, in his opinion, only slightly injured
- ensures that any player bleeding from a wound leaves the field of play. The player may only return on receiving a signal from the referee, who must be satisfied that the bleeding has stopped
- allows play to continue when the team against which an offence has been committed will benefit from such an advantage and penalises the original offence if the anticipated advantage does not ensue at that time
- punishes the more serious offence when a player commits more than one offence at the same time
- takes disciplinary action against players guilty of cautionable and sending-off offences. He is not obliged to take this action immediately but must do so when the ball next goes out of play
- takes action against team officials who fail to conduct themselves in a responsible manner and may at his discretion, expel them from the field of play and its immediate surrounds
- acts on the advice of assistant referees regarding incidents which he has not seen

- ensures that no unauthorised persons enter the field of play
- restarts the match after it has been stopped
- provides the appropriate authorities with a match report which includes information on any disciplinary action taken against players, and/or team officials and any other incidents which occurred before, during or after the match.

Decisions of the Referee

The decisions of the referee regarding facts connected with play are final.

The referee may only change a decision on realising that it is incorrect or, at his discretion, on the advice of an assistant referee, provided that he has not restarted play.

Decisions of the International F.A. Board

• Decision 1

A referee (or where applicable, an assistant referee or fourth official) is not held liable for:

any kind of injury suffered by a player, official or spectator

any damage to property of any kind

any other loss suffered by any individual, club, company, association or other body, which is due or which may be due to any decision which he may take under the terms of the Laws of the Game or in respect of the normal procedures required to hold, play and control a match.

This may include:

- a decision that the condition of the field of play or its surrounds or that the weather conditions are such as to allow or not to allow a match to take place
- a decision to abandon a match for whatever reason
- a decision as to the condition of the fixtures or equipment used during a match including the goalposts, crossbar, flagposts and the ball
- a decision to stop or not to stop a match due to spectator interference or any problem in the spectator area
- a decision to stop or not to stop play to allow an injured player to be removed from the field of play for treatment
- a decision to request or insist that an injured player be removed from the field of play for treatment
- a decision to allow or not to allow a player to wear certain apparel or equipment
- a decision (in so far as this may be his responsibility) to allow or not to allow any persons (including team or stadium officials, security officers, photographers or other media representatives) to be present in the vicinity of the field of play
- any other decision which he may take in accordance with the Laws of the Game or in conformity with his duties under the terms of FIFA, confederation, national association or league rules or regulations under which the match is played.

• Decision 2

In tournaments or competitions where a fourth official is appointed, his role and duties must be in accordance with the guidelines approved by the International F.A. Board.

• Decision 3

Facts connected with play shall include whether a goal is scored or not and the result of the match.

LAW 6 – THE ASSISTANT REFEREES

Duties

Two assistant referees are appointed whose duties, subject to the decision of the referee, are to indicate:

- when the whole of the ball has passed out of the field of play
- which side is entitled to a corner kick, goal kick or throw-in
- when a player may be penalised for being in an offside position
- when a substitution is requested
- when misconduct or any other incident has occurred out of the view of the referee.

Assistance

The assistant referees also assist the referee to control the match in accordance with the Laws of the Game.

In the event of undue interference or improper conduct, the referee will relieve an assistant referee of his duties and make a report to the appropriate authorities.

LAW 7 – THE DURATION OF THE MATCH

Periods of Play

The match lasts two equal periods of 45 minutes, unless otherwise mutually agreed between the referee and the two participating teams. Any agreement to alter the periods of play (for example to reduce each half to 40 minutes because of insufficient light) must be made before the start of play and must comply with competition rules.

Half-Time Interval

Players are entitled to an interval at half-time.

The half-time interval must not exceed 15 minutes.

Competition rules must state the duration of the half-time interval.

The duration of the half-time interval may be altered only with the consent of the referee.

Allowance for Time Lost

Allowance is made in either period for all time lost through:

- substitution(s)
- assessment of injury to players
- removal of injured players from the field of play for treatment
- wasting time
- any other cause.

The allowance for time lost is at the discretion of the referee.

Penalty Kick

Additional time is allowed for a penalty kick to be taken at the end of each half or at the end of periods of extra time.

Extra Time

Competition rules may provide for two further equal periods to be played. The conditions of Law 8 will apply.

Abandoned Match

An abandoned match is replayed unless the competition rules provide the otherwise.

LAW 8 – THE START AND RESTART OF PLAY

Preliminaries

A coin is tossed and the team which wins the toss decides which goal it will attack in the first half of the match.

The other team takes the kick-off to start the match.

The team which wins the toss takes the kick-off to start the second half of the match.

In the second half of the match the teams change ends and attack the opposite goals.

Kick-off
A kick-off is a way of starting or restarting play:

- at the start of the match
- after a goal has been scored
- at the start of the second half of the match
- at the start of each period of extra time, where applicable.

A goal may be scored directly from the kick-off.

Procedure
- all players are in their own half of the field
- the opponents of the team taking the kick-off are at least 9.15 m (10 yds) from the ball until it is in play
- the ball is stationary on the centre mark
- the referee gives a signal
- the ball is in play when it is kicked and moves forward
- the kicker does not touch the ball a second time until it has touched another player.

After a team scores a goal, the kick-off is taken by the other team.

Infringements/Sanctions
If the kicker touches the ball a second time before it has touched another player:

- an indirect free kick is awarded to the opposing team to be taken from the place where the infringement occurred.*

For any other infringement of the kick-off procedure:

- the kick-off is retaken.

Dropped Ball
A dropped ball is a way of restarting the match after a temporary stoppage which becomes necessary, while the ball is in play, for any reason not mentioned elsewhere in the Laws of the Game.

Procedure
The referee drops the ball at the place where it was located when play was stopped.*

Play restarts when the ball touches the ground.

Infringements/Sanctions
The ball is dropped again:

- if it is touched by a player before it makes contact with the ground
- if the ball leaves the field of play after it makes contact with the ground, without a player touching it.

Special Circumstances
A free kick awarded to the defending team inside its own goal area is taken from any point within the goal area.

An indirect free kick awarded to the attacking team in its opponents' goal area is taken from the goal area line parallel to the goal line at the point nearest to where the infringement occurred.

A dropped ball to restart the match after play has been temporarily stopped inside the goal area takes place on the goal area line parallel to the goal line at the point nearest to where the ball was located when play was stopped.

LAW 9 – THE BALL IN AND OUT OF PLAY

Ball Out of Play
The ball is out of play when:

- it has wholly crossed the goal line or touch line whether on the ground or in the air
- play has been stopped by the referee.

Ball In Play
The ball is in play at all other times, including when:

- it rebounds from a goalpost, crossbar or corner flagpost and remains in the field of play
- it rebounds from either the referee or an assistant referee when they are on the field of play.

LAW 10 – THE METHOD OF SCORING

Goal Scored
A goal is scored when the whole of the ball passes over the goal line, between the goalposts and under the crossbar, provided that no infringement of the Laws of the Game has been committed previously by the team scoring the goal.

Winning Team
The team scoring the greater number of goals during a match is the winner. If both teams score an equal number of goals, or if no goals are scored, the match is drawn.

Competition Rules
For matches ending in a draw, competition rules may state provisions involving extra time, or other procedures approved by the International F.A. Board to determine the winner of a match.

LAW 11 – OFFSIDE

Offside Position
It is not an offence in itself to be in an offside position.

A player is in an offside position if:

- he is nearer to his opponents' goal line than both the ball and the second last opponent.

A player is not in an offside position if:

- he is in his own half of the field of play

or

- he is level with the second last opponent

or

- he is level with the last two opponents.

Offence
A player in an offside position is only penalised if, at the moment the ball touches or is played by one of his team, he is, in the opinion of the referee, involved in active play by:

- interfering with play

or

- interfering with an opponent

or

- gaining an advantage by being in that position.

No Offence
There is no offside offence if a player receives the ball directly from:

- a goal kick

or

- a throw-in

- a corner kick.

Infringements/Sanctions
For any offside offence, the referee awards an indirect free kick to the opposing team to be taken from the place where the infringement occurred.*

LAW 12 – FOULS AND MISCONDUCT

Fouls and misconduct are penalised as follows:

Direct Free Kick

A direct free kick is awarded to the opposing team if a player commits any of the following six offences in a manner considered by the referee to be careless, reckless or using excessive force:

- kicks or attempts to kick an opponent
- trips or attempts to trip an opponent
- jumps at an opponent
- charges an opponent
- strikes or attempts to strike an opponent
- pushes an opponent.

A direct free kick is also awarded to the opposing team if a player commits any of the following four offences:

- tackles an opponent to gain possession of the ball, making contact with the opponent before touching the ball
- holds an opponent
- spits at an opponent
- handles the ball deliberately (except for the goalkeeper within his own penalty area).

A direct free kick is taken from where the offence occurred.

Penalty Kick

A penalty kick is awarded if any of the above ten offences is committed by a player inside his own penalty area, irrespective of the position of the ball, provided it is in play.

Indirect Free Kick

An indirect free kick is awarded to the opposing team if a goalkeeper, inside his own penalty area, commits any of the following five offences:

- takes more than four steps while controlling the ball with his hands, before releasing it from his possession
- touches the ball again with his hands after it has been released from his possession and has not touched any other player
- touches the ball with his hands after it has been deliberately kicked to him by a team-mate
- touches the ball with his hands after he has received it directly from a throw-in taken by a team-mate
- wastes time.

An indirect free kick is awarded to the opposing team if a player, in the opinion of the referee, commits any of the following three offences:

- plays in a dangerous manner
- impedes the progress of an opponent
- prevents the goalkeeper from releasing the ball from his hands
- commits any other offence, not previously mentioned in Law 12, for which play is stopped to caution or dismiss a player.

The indirect free kick is taken from where the offence occurred.

Disciplinary Sanctions

Cautionable Offences

A player is cautioned and shown the yellow card if he commits any of the following seven offences:

1. is guilty of unsporting behaviour
2. shows dissent by word or action
3. persistently infringes the Laws of the Game
4. delays the restart of play
5. fails to respect the required distance when play is restarted with a corner kick or free kick
6. enters or re-enters the field of play without the referee's permission
7. deliberately leaves the field of play without the referee's permission.

Sending-Off Offences

A player is sent off and shown the red card if he commits any of the following seven offences:

1. is guilty of serious foul play
2. is guilty of violent conduct
3. spits at an opponent or any other person
4. denies the opposing team a goal or an obvious goalscoring opportunity by deliberately handling the ball (this does not apply to a goalkeeper within his own penalty area)
5. denies an obvious goal-scoring opportunity to an opponent moving towards the player's goal by an offence punishable by a free kick or a penalty kick
6. uses offensive, insulting or abusive language
7. receives a second caution in the same match.

Decisions of the International F.A. Board

- Decision 1

A penalty kick is awarded if, while the ball is in play, the goalkeeper, inside his own penalty area, strikes or attempts to strike an opponent by throwing the ball at him.

- Decision 2

A player who commits a cautionable or sending-off offence, either on or off the field of play, whether directed towards an opponent, a team-mate, the referee, an assistant referee or any other person, is disciplined according to the nature of the offence committed.

- Decision 3

The goalkeeper is considered to be in control of the ball by touching it with any part of his hand or arms. Possession of the ball includes the goalkeeper deliberately parrying the ball, but does not include the circumstances where, in the opinion of the referee, the ball rebounds accidentally from the goalkeeper, for example after he has made a save.

The goalkeeper is considered to be guilty of time-wasting if he holds the ball in his hands or arms for more than five–six seconds.

- Decision 4

Subject to the terms of Law 12, a player may pass the ball to his own goalkeeper using his head or chest or knee, etc. If, however, in the opinion of the referee, a player uses a deliberate trick while the ball is in play in order to circumvent the Law, the player is guilty of unsporting behaviour. He is cautioned, shown the yellow card and an indirect free kick is awarded to the opposing team from the place where the infringement occurred.*

A player using a deliberate trick to circumvent the Law while he is taking a free kick, is cautioned for unsporting behaviour and shown the yellow card. The free kick is retaken.

In such circumstances, it is irrelevant whether the goalkeeper subsequently touches the ball with his hands or not. The offence is committed by the player in attempting to circumvent both the letter and the spirit of Law 12.

- Decision 5

A tackle from behind which endangers the safety of an opponent must be sanctioned as serious foul play.

LAW 13 – FREE KICKS

Free kicks are either direct or indirect.

For both direct and indirect free kicks, the ball must be stationary when the kick is taken and the kicker does not touch the ball a second time until it has touched another player.

The Direct Free Kick

- if a direct free kick is kicked directly into the opponents' goal, a goal is awarded
- if a direct free kick is kicked directly into the team's own goal, a corner kick is awarded to the opposing team.

The Indirect Free Kick

Signal

The referee indicates an indirect free kick by raising his arm above his head. He maintains his arm in that position until the kick has been taken and the ball has touched another player or goes out of play.

Ball Enters the Goal

A goal can be scored only if the ball subsequently touches another player before it enters the goal.

- if an indirect free kick is kicked directly into the opponents' goal, a goal kick is awarded

- all opponents are at least 9.15 m (10 yds) from the ball until it is in play
- the ball is in play when it is kicked and moves

Infringements/Sanctions

- the kick is retaken.

Procedure

- the player taking the penalty kicks the ball forward
- he does not play the ball a second time until it has touched another player
- the ball is in play when it is kicked and moves forward.

- A goalkeeper who is injured while kicks are being taken from the penalty mark and is unable to continue as goalkeeper may be replaced by a named substitute provided his team has not used the maximum number of substitutes permitted under the competition rules

- With the exception of the foregoing case, only players who are on the field of play at the end of the match, which includes extra time where appropriate, are allowed to take kicks from the penalty mark
- Each kick is taken by a different player and all eligible players must take a kick before any player can take a second kick

THE TECHNICAL AREA

The technical area described in Law 3, International F.A. Board Decision no. 2, relates particularly to matches played in stadia with a designated seated area for technical staff and substitutes.

Technical areas may vary between stadia, for example in size or location, and the following notes are issued for general guidance.

- The coach and other occupants of the technical area must behave in a responsible manner.

THE FOURTH OFFICIAL

- The fourth official may be appointed under the competition rules and officiates if any of the three match officials is unable to continue
- Prior to the start of the competition, the organiser states clearly whether, if the referee is unable to continue, the fourth official takes over as the match referee or whether the senior assistant referee takes over as referee with the fourth official becoming an assistant referee
- The fourth official assists with any administrative duties before, during and after the match, as required by the referee
- He is responsible for assisting with substitution procedures during the match
- He supervises the replacement footballs, where required. If the match ball has to be replaced during a match, he provides another ball, on the instruction of the referee, thus keeping the delay to a minimum
- He has the authority to check the equipment of substitutes before they enter the field of play. If their equipment does not comply with the Laws of the Game, he informs the assistant referee, who then informs the referee
- The fourth official assists the referee at all times
- After the match, the fourth official must submit a report to the appropriate authorities on any misconduct or other incident which has occurred out of the view of the referee and the assistant referees. The fourth official must advise the referee and his assistants of any report being made.
